Gas, Hoses Kill Gory Race Riot

TUSCALOOSA, Ala. (AP)—Hundreds of Negroes shouting "we want freedom" defied a ban on street demonstrations Tuesday and engaged in a bloody clash with police.

The outbreak of violence, involving mostly teenagers, was touched off by the refusal of city officials to let them carry on a planned protest march against segregation.

Angry Negroes inside a church threw bottles, rocks and even chains at the blue-helmeted officers surrounding the building. Police restored order 45 minutes later with fire hoses and tear gas.

Police arrested 96 persons, including 15 juveniles who were turned over to juvenile court. The others were charged with a variety of offences, including

Whites Stomp Whites

ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla. (AP)—White men and youths kicked and beat civil rights demonstrators Tuesday night in an outbreak of violence near this old city's slave market after more than 200 persons marched downtown.

Special target of the hit-and-run attack was the small number of white demonstrators. Several white men were knocked to the pavement, then methodically kicked and stomped.

A big white man assaulted one white demonstrator as the marchers filed along the sidewalk two abreast. The demonstrator threw his hands around his head and groaned to the thud of repeated kicks.

MOSCOW (UPI)—Soviet cosmonaut Valentina Tereshkova, 27, was reported today to have given birth to a daughter—the world's first space baby.

Both mother and daughter were reported "doing fine." Valentina is the wife of Soviet cosmonaut Andrian Nikolayev.

B.C. School Textbook Liberally Misleading

'Staunch Tory' King

VANCOUVER (CP)—MacKenzie King was a staunch Conservative — true or false?

According to a B.C. school textbook it is true.

History student John W. Groom said the textbook — "This Golden Age of Conflict" — claims that "In 1947 MacKenzie King celebrated his 50th year as Conservative prime minister, but the following year was defeated by the Liberal Louis St. Laurent."

J. F. K. English, deputy education minister, said the error had been corrected.

Sunshine Means Trouble Fraser Nears Flood Mark

The runoff-swollen Fraser River rose to within two feet of the flood-danger level in the Fraser Valley yesterday, and officials ordered 24-hour patrols on 240 miles of dikes.

Some minor flooding of farmland was reported, but biggest concern was the forecast for warm, sunny weather through most of B.C.

A spell of hot, dry weather would melt the last of the snow quickly and probably bring on flooded conditions, although officials said they were not certain how much snowpack was left.

Officials, checking emergency civil defence supplies in the valley, said the next few days would determine whether serious flooding would occur.

Meanwhile, three families left their homes as water seeped over a farm near Agassiz, and a riverbank street was more prepared to leave. In Matsqui, water rolled over un-diked farmland and covered roads with 18 inches of water. At Hope, the Fraser crept over a farm near Agassiz, and a riverbank street

Hat Floats on River—Boy Under It

NORTH KAMLOOPS, B.C. (CP)—Charlie Davis watched idly as a red cow-boy hat floated down the swollen Thompson River Monday. Suddenly he saw a child's face under the hat.

Davis jumped into the river and pulled Barry Madson, 3, to safety.

Police said the boy, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Madson, had fallen into the river while throwing rocks from a retaining wall.

Davis said he didn't see the boy fall. He had just come out of his apartment block to dispose of some garbage.

2,000 FLEEING FLOODED CITY

GREAT FALLS, Mont. (AP)—At least 2,000 persons were evacuated from Great Falls area homes Tuesday night as the crest of a disastrous flood spilled over eight square miles.

The Sun River crested at about midnight at this city of 70,000 persons.

Upstream, the waters of the state's most damaging flood left at least 30 persons reported dead and hundreds homeless. Governor Tim Babcock estimated damage at $10,000,000.

DISASTER AREA

President Johnson declared seven flooded northwestern Montana counties a disaster area.

Dam-breaking flood waters from four days of rain and from melting snow off the Rocky Mountains swelled streams on both sides of the Continental Divide.

READY FOR CREST

Great Falls was prepared with sandbags and emergency shelter facilities for the crest.

Tom Sullivan, manager of a Red Cross shelter set up in the Great Falls West Side Junior High School, said he had processed about 1,300 persons evacuated from homes west of Great Falls and from an exclusive residential area surrounding a country club and a golf course.

11 FEET OVER

At midnight, the Sun River was nearly 23 feet deep, 11 feet over its flood stage.

A spokesman for the air force and national guard estimated that 2,000 to 3,000 persons were evacuated from their homes in Great Falls and in the flooded areas to the west and north.

Earlier, upstream from Great Falls the crest was visible from the air as it rolled along

Mac-Powell Strike Legal Says MacEachen's Aide

OTTAWA (CP)—James Byrne, parliamentary secretary to Labor Minister MacEachen, said Tuesday night the office workers' strike against the MacMillan, Bloedel and Powell River Company in British Columbia is a "legitimate legal strike" and he said the federal labor department should not interfere. (See also Page 11.)

Two Die of Plant Fumes Ambulance Kills Third

MONTREAL (CP)—Two persons died Tuesday after inhaling ammonia fumes at a plant in suburban Lachine and a third man was killed in a collision between his car and a police ambulance rushing to the scene.

Leo Montreuil, 25, and Moise Clayton, 29, both of Montreal, were overcome by the fumes and died. Arthur Breton, 25, was killed in the collision.

A gas leak was discovered after 15 employees of the Smith and Nephew toiletries firm suddenly became ill. Several persons were treated at the plant and nine others were taken to hospital.

Second Senate Reading Given B.C. Bank Bill

OTTAWA (CP)—A private bill to establish the Bank of British Columbia received second reading—approval in principle—in the Senate Tuesday after its sponsor rejected arguments that the proposed institution would be unconstitutional.

Senators—Liberals and Conservatives—who called on division said earlier they would approve second reading only for the purpose of getting a chance to question the sponsors of the bank before a Senate committee.

Peaceful Death at Home Claims Lord Beaverbrook

LONDON (CP)—Canadian-born Lord Beaverbrook, the millionaire publisher whose newspapers became part of the British way of life, died Tuesday at his home near Leatherhead in Surrey. He was 85.

One of the most famous Canadians to settle in Britain, the Presbyterian minister's son from the Ontario manse, who always remembered his late boyhood in the Maritimes, died peacefully, surrounded by his family.

His son Max Aitken, who will carry on as head of the Beaverbrook newspaper empire, said the Beaver, as he was universally known, had been seriously ill for the last week.

Death came only two weeks after a memorable birthday anniversary dinner at London's Dorchester Hotel given for him by a fellow Canadian-born publisher, Lord Thomson.

Once penniless, Beaverbrook built up a fortune in the cement business in Canada and left at the age of 28 to start a new career in Britain. After the First World War he bought The

His Birthplace Forgot Beaver

MAPLE, Ont. (UPI)—This tiny Ontario township, birthplace of a minister's son who became one of the great men of his time, hardly seems to remember him at all.

There is no monument to William Maxwell "Max" Aitken, Lord Beaverbrook, born here May 25, 1878. The St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church in which his father preached still stands, but the manse in which Beaverbrook was born has been torn down and replaced.

There is a memorial to Rev. William Aitken, but none for his son.

The Aitkens moved to northern New Brunswick when Max was a year old, and there is no one alive who remembers the family.

But Newcastle Remembered, Grieved

NEWCASTLE, N.B. (UPI)—

This town of 5,000 people was plunged into sorrow by the news of the death of Lord Beaverbrook a man it had known first as Max Aitken, son of the Presbyterian minister.

Lord Beaverbrook did much for the town. He converted the manse where he grew up into a library, donating 1,500 books to its shelves. He gave the town a rink, a theatre, a town hall. He gave chimneys and an organ to the church.

When the district gave him

the town square, he refurbished it — then created a fund to ensure that the town need never spend a penny for maintenance of any of his gifts.

"We have lost a good friend," said Mayor Donald Whalen.

Invasion Idea Born Two Years Before Fact

General, how did it all begin? When did you first get your orders that you were going to be supreme commander in northwest Europe?

My orders that I was going to be the supreme commander of this operation came to me some time in early December, 1943. Mr. (President) Roosevelt was on his way home from Teheran (where he had conferred with Prime Minister Churchill and Premier Stalin) and he stopped in North Africa and notified me. We had received a garbled telegram before that, but his visit was when I got the actual order. There had been quite a bit of gossip, you may remember, in the newspapers about whether I was going to do it or whether

General (George C.) Marshall would. I think the decision was made by Mr. Roosevelt that General Marshall simply couldn't be spared from Washington. Since the major portion of the forces here in northwest Europe was going to be American, as the plan developed, they wanted an American commander. I was the logical choice because of my experience in the Mediterranean.

The cross-channel invasion plan itself was born more than two years before the operation. The outline of the plan was developed in Washington (in February and March, 1942) and approved by the president. He then sent General Marshall and Mr. (Harry) Hopkins to England to talk it over with the British. They approved it too as the eventual knockout blow for Germany.

Then the invasion was planned shortly after we got into the war in December, 1941?

That's right, and this plan involved thousands of ships and airplanes, guns and ammunition. Some pieces of equipment we later used weren't even dreamed of then.

We were then, in 1942, in a world of deficits. The British had just about lost Tobruk in North Africa. We were losing the Philippines and the islands in the Pacific. The Indonesian Islands were going. It was in that atmosphere that this plan was first conceived and approved as a major operation of the war.

I worked on this plan, took it to the chief of staff, General Marshall, and he liked it. Of course, I knew what his feeling was—that we must do something over here in Europe. And he took it to the president, then to the prime minister, and it was approved.

Did you have the slightest idea that you might be the commander of the invasion forces?

On the contrary, I had been

Estimates Bring Ottawa Spending To Six Billion

OTTAWA (CP) — Supplementary spending estimates totalling $71,173,134 were tabled in the Commons yesterday by Privy Council President McElraith.

They brought total budgetary spending placed before the House for the current fiscal year, ending next March 31, to $6,774,686,642.

EARLIER THIS YEAR

Main spending estimates, tabled earlier this year, provided for budgetary spending of $6,703,513,508.

Further supplementary estimates are expected before the fiscal year ends.

Along with the spending figures, Mr. McElraith tabled a supplementary estimate of $333,638,802 for loans and advances. Added to the main estimate figure of $108,897,000 it brought to $442,535,802 the amount required for these.

Included were amounts of $50,000,000 as special loan assistance under the external aid office to developing countries and $1,387,100 to India for financing purchase in Canada of aircraft along with spare parts and equipment in line with an earlier agreement between the two countries.

Commons approval last week of the Columbia River Treaty and protocol had an echo in supplementary estimates of $275,140,500 for purchase in U.S. dollars of any U.S. securities issues in connection with the huge power development. A limit of $254,400,000 in U.S. funds was stipulated for such purchases.

Another $4,500,000 was provided for stockpiling of uranium concentrates under contracts between the Crown-owned Eldorado Company with Rio Algom, Denison and Faraday Mines.

There was a loan of $1,322,000 to the Canadian Overseas Telecommunication Corporation for additions to and improvements in its facilities.

PROVIDES FOR ALBERTA

The biggest share of additional budgetary spending went to the finance department, the estimate of $35,350,001 bringing its total for the year to $1,465,065,381. Biggest single new item was $35,000,000 to supplement other votes for payment of salaries and wages. There was also $250,000 for the Alberta, B.C. disaster fund.

NEW SPENDING
The transport department received an additional $8,694,802, for a total of $275,382,002. Most of the new spending is for operation and maintenance of its various marine and air services.

External affairs estimates were increased by $1,980,000 to $25,628,774. The new spending includes a contribution to Greece of Canadian food products worth $1,000,000.

Johnson Presses For Peace

GENEVA (UPI) — President

Johnson told the Geneva disarmament conference Tuesday east and west have taken the first steps down the pathway to disarmament and "we must redouble our efforts until it is completed."

The president's statement was read to the conference as it resumed after a six-week recess.

FEW SIGNS
He said that recent measures such as the partial test ban and nuclear production cutbacks were the "first steps."

Soviet deputy foreign minister Valerian Zorin, heading the Soviet delegation, said he had been ordered to "do all possible for more agreements," but initial moves at the opening session gave little sign that new accords are imminent.

Parents Die In Shooting

OLDS, Alta. (CP) — The parents of seven children were shot to death Tuesday in what police described as murder-suicide.

Police said Donald Murray Craig, 46, apparently killed himself after shooting his wife Mildred, 43, in the kitchen of their home. A .32-calibre pistol was found near his body.

The couple were life-long residents of this community 50 miles north of Calgary. Neighbors discovered the bodies after hearing shots.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — In the climax to a series of bitter quarrels, Leonard Thierry's wife left him.

Police said this was Thierry's reaction:
He awakened his three small children.

He showed Theresa, 7, a .22-calibre pistol and told her to shoot him. She refused.

He told Gary, 5, how to work the pistol and told him to shoot. He refused.

Then he put the pistol in the hands of Glen, 4. He, too, refused.

Thierry told him if he didn't, he'd "get the leather strap."

Glen pulled the trigger.

Thierry, a 32-year-old baker, was taken to hospital in critical condition Monday morning. A bullet in his brain, the shot hit just over his right eye.

"I had to do it," said Glen. "He told me he'd get the belt and spank me if I didn't."

Police said Thierry and his wife, Mary, 28, had had many arguments in their eight years of marriage. Officers turned the children over to her care.

$237,000 Awarded Families

CALGARY (CP) — Families of three Canadian Broadcasting Corporation employees killed in an airplane crash in January, 1963, were awarded $237,000 damages by Alberta Supreme Court Tuesday.

The award was against Viking Air Services Limited of Calgary, owners of the plane in which television producer Norman Coton, 48, assistant cameraman Len Macdonald and assistant cameraman Charles Reigler, 30, were killed. Viking conceded liability for the accident.

Victoria Ship-Jumper May Stay in Canada

CALGARY (CP) — A Greek sailor who married a Greek-Canadian girl after he jumped ship in Victoria appears to have won a temporary truce in his battle to stay in Canada.

Panagiotas Giacomis was arrested in Calgary after he got a job and a bride. The immigration department last month rejected his appeal against a deportation order.

However, lawyer Peter Levesque said Monday he has been advised by the immigration department that a stay of proceedings would be ordered allowing Mr. Giacomis to remain in the country for up to 12 months.

Mr. Levesque said he thinks that if the sailor does well during the extension period he may be granted the status of a landed immigrant.

Mrs. Giacomis is expecting a baby in the fall.

Tributes Paid Beaverbrook

CP, Reuters, UPI

In a tribute to "a superlative friend and a great competitor," Lord Thomson described Lord Beaverbrook Tuesday as "a genius, not only as a journalist but in almost every other direction as well."

Lord Beaverbrook died Tuesday at his country home at Chertsey, England, two weeks after his fellow Canadian-born publisher tendered him a dinner in London to mark his 55th birthday.

'GREAT FRIEND'

In Toronto, where he will address Rotary International's annual convention Wednesday, Lord Thomson paid this tribute: "I've lost a great friend and Fleet Street has lost a great journalist. Lord Beaverbrook was the great genius of Fleet Street. He was the great professional. Fleet Street will never see his like again."

Elder statesman Sir Winston Churchill led the tributes to press tycoon Lord Beaverbrook. Churchill said: "I am deeply grieved at the loss of my oldest and closest friend. He served his country and his cause valiantly and was the most loyal and devoted of comrades."

Prime Minister Sir Alec Douglas-Home said: "Lord Beaverbrook was an outstanding man. As a politician, statesman and journalist he devoted his long life to the concept of empire and Commonwealth."

The most colorful newspaper publisher of the last century has been lost with the death of Lord Beaverbrook, R. S. Malone, publisher of the Winnipeg Free Press, said Tuesday.

PROVINCE MOURNS

Premier Robichaud of New Brunswick led his province in mourning the death of Lord Beaverbrook.

"Lord Beaverbrook will never die in the hearts and minds of our people," he said. "Lord Beaverbrook endeared himself to our people as has no other man."

Flags flew at half mast in the saddened capital whose art gallery, new theatre and several university buildings are manifest symbols of Beaverbrook's $20,000,000 donations to New Brunswick.

Lord Beaverbrook

ALMOST AS THOUGH the final accolade had been paid him at his 85th birthday celebrations in London two weeks ago, Lord Beaverbrook has now passed from the human scene in which he excelled throughout his long life. He was probably the most famous Canadian of modern times.

Max Aitken, as he was when he left Canadian shores to enter British public life with the dynamic force that marked all his doings, never lost his touch with his native land, and his love of and philanthropy to his home province of New Brunswick are legendary, but it was in Great Britain, with a belief that never wavered in the Empire that became the Commonwealth, that he performed his life work.

That work embraced his leadership in Fleet Street as proprietor of the Daily Express, a newspaper he raised to national importance and influence, and in the political realm in which he played so large a part. Early after his arrival in London over 50 years ago he became not only the confidant of the inner circles of the British ruling hierarchies but held ministerial office and was a driving force whose remarkable talents found expression in various realms of British life.

Probably only Sir Winston Churchill, to whom he was a friend and aid in Britain's finest hour, rivalled him in the almost demonic energy which he brought to all his pursuits. "The Beaver," as he was so frequently referred to, became a household word across the Atlantic, and of international repute as well.

That inexhaustible ability for getting things done reached its flower when early in the war he became charged by Churchill with producing planes in time to cope with the Nazi aerial invasion of 1940. Sir Arthur Bryant, the noted English historian, has said that no other man could have so electrified the aircraft industry, and that to Beaverbrook goes the palm for enabling the RAF to meet the Luftwaffe with the Spitfires and Hurricanes which won the Battle of Britain, ascribed by Bryant as one of the half-dozen crucial battles in all history. For that alone, and this was but one facet of the enterprise which marked all his doings, the name of this notable Canadian will be cherished in British annals.

The quality of "The Beaver" and his impact on affairs of business and state were reflected by others during the unique testimonial dinner held in his honor barely a fortnight ago, when the leaders of London paid him his well-deserved tribute and the BBC lauded him in a special program covering his life and attainments.

The Duke of Windsor said of him that "his name ranks high in Canada, the land where he was born, and in Britain where he has mostly worked and lived, and throughout the British Commonwealth whose interests were his first concern." The Daily Mail cited his life "as an epitome of this bustling, booming century." The Yorkshire Post said "every Briton has good reason to say 'Thank God for Lord Beaverbrook' in both world wars." The Evening News cited "his intense industry in so many fields, of such distinction and resounding success."

And, from the greatest of all his colleagues and his contemporaries in age and endeavor for half a century, Sir Winston Churchill, came this tribute: "On my old friend's eighty-fifth birthday I recall the words I wrote of him in 1940: Lord Beaverbrook rendered signal service. All his remarkable qualities fitted the need. His personal buoyancy and vigor were a tonic. I was glad to be able sometimes to lean on him. He did not fail; this was his hour. His personal force and genius, combined with so much persuasion and contrivance, swept aside many obstacles."

An unusual man, of rich variety and accomplishment, Lord Beaverbrook will go down in history as a Canadian who performed greatly in the service of the motherland he held dear and of the Commonwealth he revered as a wholesome power for good in a troubled world. This was the view he held as dominant to all his aims and to which he gathered all his tremendous efforts and abilities. He was an illustrious son of this country.

Figures and Findings

STATISTICS are succinctly described in the Concise Oxford Dictionary as being "numerical facts systematically collected." Benjamin Disraeli, however, defined them differently. "There are three kinds of lies," he once said, "lies, damned lies and statistics."

It has since also been remarked that the same set of statistics can be made to prove both sides of any argument—depending on how the "numerical facts" are analyzed or interpreted.

Such analyses are particularly popular among political parties following almost any election (for it must not be forgotten that governments stand or fall on the "numerical facts systematically collected" from the electorate) when the losing party invariably attempts to juggle the resultant ballot total to show that statistically at least it was far from defeated.

A more recent case in point might be the findings of a cross-Canada newspaper poll on whether or not Mr. Pearson's new flag has the backing of the majority of the people. The final tally of votes showed that 37,634 Canadians favored the retention of the Canadian Red Ensign and 29,637 supported a distinctive flag. Of this total, readers of Montreal's La Presse (the largest French language newspaper taking part in the poll) provided 17,488 votes for the distinctive banner but only 96 for the ensign.

Interesting as these statistics are, the analysis of the pollsters is even more intriguing. Having found that the Canadian Red Ensign headed the poll with 55.6 per cent of the total votes, they say this: "However, the 44.4 per cent of votes cast for a distinctive flag can be interpreted as a substantial public endorsement of Prime Minister Pearson's proposed maple leaf flag."

Last Mr. Pearson, who may be following this newspaper poll with more than passing interest, take this finding as a mark of overwhelming public approval for his new flag. It would be only fair to point out that other analysts of these "numerical facts systematically collected" might interpret the result as a substantial rejection of his proposed banner.

It might even be worthwhile to bring to his attention that outside of the substantial Quebec vote in favor of the new maple leaf flag (as provided by the readers of La Presse) more than 70 per cent of all Canadians participating in the newspaper poll voted for the Canadian Red Ensign as their choice of a national flag.

Thinking Aloud

"... of shoes, and ships, and sailing too..."

By TOM TAYLOR

LATER on Saturday evening, after the pomp and splendour of the civic freedom ceremony, I asked the man who took the Canadian Scottish salute on the Normandy beachhead how he felt twenty years ago that very day.

"Plenty scared," he replied. "And this from one who came home from the war a brigadier with a chestful of decorations."

But he was right, of course. Only the lucky person born fearless, which is a different quality than bravery, goes into action without feeling the tremors. The job is to overcome these and carry on—hiding one's fears.

There were no fears but instead pride among the former soldiers of the regiment as they watched the bearded boys who now uphold the regimental colors.

And they sat in the back rows of Bastion Square, content to be quiet onlookers of the city's tribute to the unit that still commands their devotion.

These bearded ones themselves, obviously, were out to do their regiment credit, bearing well in a picturesque ceremony that for untried militiamen was a test of discipline and deportment.

Theirs may never be the ordeal of fire but they have much to enjoy and savor in the friendship of a common purpose, the esprit-de-corps that service in a militia unit engenders, in peace as well as war.

Regimental pride. This is the lodestone of military life, whole or part time; the cherished association and the feeling of belonging.

It never leaves a man who has once worn a uniform, absorbed the spirit of his regiment, felt unified by its record, and become a part of it.

And no matter how high a soldier may afterwards rise in his profession.

In brief conversation at the Armoury, when talk of this militia occasion was filling hearts with pleasure, the GOC who as the leading military representative watched the bestowal of the city's freedom reminded yours truly that this was his own regiment.

And there you have the substance of what makes a unit tick; I would that Mr. Heller wouldn't forget this.

The ceremony itself was, in military parlance, an operation conducted with tactical success.

There can't ever have been a city council meeting of its like before, surely; not in this part of the world at least. Whoever had the idea of carrying the idea of militia to the heart of the city, of regular civic procedures was spelled with a touch of genius.

This inscribed it on the civic record with unusual aptness.

As for the council itself, under the decisive leadership of the officer in command, the mayor, it matched in celerity the boys drawn up before it in meticulous array.

The agenda was a masterpiece of concise orderliness, each address brief but to the point, conveying in spare but eloquent sentences the sentiments of the occasion.

The whole Bastion Square parade—for all the participants were indeed on parade—was in fact a model of its kind.

It is scarcely likely there will be another such event in local history which, in the mere reason that this act should have been etched in the civic annals in special form.

And while the new drums the honorary colonel presented at Parliament Square, with a concert of citizens applauding in approving interest, may never be used in war, as the regiment's CO said, they will best reflect the heart of this city and the men who serve it in the garb of the Canadian Scottish.

Young and old, these will continue to adorn the local scene, as the unit has adorned Victoria for half-a-century past.

And the bearded boys in whose hands the colors now rest seem well dedicated to their charge.

They have caught the torch and cannot fail to hold it high.

Italy became a republic 18 years ago today—in 1946. Victor Emmanuel III had tried to save the monarchy by abdicating just prior to a referendum on the issue of royalism. But the vote was 12,717,923 against the monarchy, and after a month's reign, Umberto II went into exile.

1940—Italy declared war on Britain and France.

Modern Egypt

Country with Purpose and Hope

By RAMZE FAYED from London

THE Comet 4C had just left Rome and now, after an absence of 10 years, I was on the last lap of my journey to Egypt. I had left the country in 1954, in the early days of the revolution. The military junta had taken over a bankrupt country without political identity or purpose.

The feeling of demoralization prevalent before the 1952 revolution was due to the failure of the war against Israel in 1948, the concentration of the country's wealth in the hands of a feudal elite, the dominance of foreign influence in commerce, the empty promises of politicians and a king seemingly uninterested in the plight of his people. Given these circumstances, the revolution and subsequent abolition of King Farouk was inevitable, for frustration was such as to allow for no other solution.

From the start the junta identified itself with the middle and working classes. One of its first measures was land reform which smashed the feudal system by limiting the possession of land to 200 acres per family. This was later revised to 100 acres.

Outside the four major cities of Cairo, Alexandria, Port Said and Suez was a neglected sledgehammer with a peasant long exploited, apathetic and prone to poverty and disease. Heavy investment in industry has now been made, and a new industrial revolution program is also under way. Last year nearly 220,000 acres of arable land was made available. This is more than three times that reclaimed in the 20 years preceding the revolution.

I visited the village of Sal-hagar in the Nile Delta region which I had known well. In place of the old dirt road there was now a new asphalt one. A new school had just been completed, and the villagers were suggesting daily to be linked to the national electricity grid. They also seemed more aware of the technical possibilities of improving their productivity, which could be traced chiefly to the influence of Cairo radio.

What was most significant, however, was that the old fatalism had been replaced by a new political awareness and a feeling that something had mattered.

Though the Egyptian Revolution is better known externally for such achievements as the Aswan Dam, the nationalization of the Suez Canal and its impact on the international scene, no less important is this new sense of purpose and hope.

In Cairo, the changes are more obvious. Cars are more numerous and a new model, the Nasser, is now almost completely Egyptian-built. New hotels are under construction and the rapid increase in tourism has come more toward Cairo into an international city. A sense of pride in the new Liberation Square, around which are built the Nile Hilton, Sheraton and Cleopatra hotels, the headquarters of the Arab League and a gigantic government building with laid-out gardens.

To people in the Western democracies, parliamentary rule is a way of life and it is hard to conceive of freedom being guaranteed under any other form of government. In Egypt, which is a one-party state, parliamentary rule is remembered as a meaningless concept, as a clearing house for votes operated roughly on the same lines as a stocks and shares market. You bought political power by either increasing your land holdings, and consequently the number of peasants' votes at your disposal, or you bought yourself into some established mass media.

In 1952, power was transferred to the Revolutionary Command Council. A month ago, the newly-elected members of the National Assembly convened for the first time and voted in favor of a new constitution which transferred to them all legislative powers, including the power to dismiss any minister or the president himself.

Since the Suez Canal was nationalized, additional facilities have been provided in the form of repair yards, improved salvage and dredging systems. During the 80 years of operation under the old Suez Canal, total investment was $326,500,000. Under the present five-year plan (1959-1963) $335 million is being spent to make the canal more efficient.

On the economic side, consumption in the first three years of the five-year plan increased by 15 per cent while national income increased by only 12.2 per cent. Yet Egypt somehow managed to achieve 49.2 per cent of her total planned investment. With luck, the target of $31,577 million for the five-year plan period will be reached if she can maintain her present increase in national production, a 43 per cent increase in the first three years of the plan. In fact, industrial production tripled between 1952-63, and according to UN figures, this represents one of the highest rates recorded in industrial development.

Seeking to discover what socialism means to the average Egyptian, I discussed the question with many people. It is clear that there are no irrevocable doctrinal premises.

Society, if it is to progress, must be subject to constant change and have a flexible system to interpret these changing circumstances.

Thus, it is considered wrong to say dogmatically that all means of production should be owned by the state, for, apart from everything else, there will be situations in which the machinery needed to effect state control will render such control uneconomical.

Subtle Thrust

From The Ottawa Journal

MR. Harold Macmillan was addressing a British by-election meeting recently when in the course of describing the dangers of turning out the government, he said:

"Of course, we can't be content with this prosperity, but we must keep it."

Now there was a nice thrust. What a contrast it strikes against the ill-humored sledgehammer rhetoric that Canadian electors are so consistently battered by, and from all political sides.

Is it not harder to parry the subtle sword than to avoid the ponderous hammer? Canadian parliamentarians wielding heavy, blunt instruments develop muscles in the wrong places.

The experience of other countries has shown, too, that total nationalization of the land is uneconomical. The flexibility of the Egyptian system is due to the fact that the revolution did not seek to impose a rigid ideology but rather evolved its ideology as it matured.

Regardless of what the Egyptians have developed, one thing is paramount; they have awakened to the possibilities of the twentieth century. When the westerner attempts to evaluate what they are doing, he must remember that freedom takes many forms and that to the starving peasant freedom from hunger is far more immediate than anything else. When the Westerner looks at Egypt today, he must try to remember what Egypt was yesterday.

Mr. Amin Azeldine, professor at the Institute of Social Work at Cairo University, reflected that two factors seemed to him to sum up the situation: "When I go home my mother aged 80 will often have a heated political argument with me and my children. Everyone is interested and feels that they have an active contribution to make in building something new and worthwhile. The second factor is that, in my opinion, the most important of Nasser's contributions to Egypt is in freeing her from the alternatives of Communism and capitalism and giving her an individual identity and national purpose."

Our Readers' Views

When it is considered for publication in this column, letters must be on subjects of general interest, and must be signed by the writer's name and address.

Commonwealth, and is intensely loyal.

What a good thing there will always be an England! She does at least serve as a whipping post for many disgruntled people both here and elsewhere.

Does she remember the many thousands of people from Eire who went to England after the war and found work there?

FAIR PLAY.

In Agreement

One would agree entirely with Mr. Wheeler's letter. I have often asked the same question. The fact that most people have been flying the Union Jack in place of the Canadian Red Ensign, could be one of the reasons for the plea for a new flag. I was guilty of this myself for some time, having bought our Union Jack in England, where the flag is part of one's life; and not seeing the Red Ensign very often. Now I realize that had the Red Ensign been known, as the people of the U.S.A. know their flag, and flown from one end of Canada to the other by everybody, and every church and organization, things might have been different.

I wonder if at the whim of a party leader Soviet Russia would change the Hammer and Sickle; U.S. their Stars and Stripes? Not likely.

But some people say we are now grown up, and want to be independent; so does any young person; but a daughter who lives home is still a daughter in her mother's house, but mistress in her own. No one interferes, but surely no one would discard their mother or mother country. Besides, who made Canada what she is? Who did all the spade work, making her what she is for us to enjoy?

DOROTHY ABRAHAM,
1125 Faithful St.

Cool Down

It is a disgrace to Canada that the symbol that did so much in the making of Canada, "The Red Ensign," which we honor, should be the centre of such a controversy.

In the first place such a major change should not have been brought in by a prime minister with a minority government. The question could have been put to the people in the form of a referendum when the next general election takes place.

It is like the steamroller tactics of the passing of the pipe line bill and a shot gun marriage. Members are placed in a most difficult position.

We have reached the point of no return so let us all cool down and analyze the situation.

The Red Ensign can win its last battle with pride and honor with the knowledge that it is the symbol of those men who have brought Canada together as a nation, and now gives way to a Canadian flag.

Mr. Pearson and his advisers have brought in a flag which when we study its background we have little to complain about.

We will fly the Union Jack as a Commonwealth member and be proud to do so, flying level with our new flag. I suggest that the Queen on her arrival in October be given the honor to present to Canada the new national flag and at the same time present the Red Ensign with full military honors to the veterans for safe keeping, with permission to fly it with the national flag on memorial parades.

Tibetans' New Life

By ROY BRUNTON
from Switzerland

EVEN in cosmopolitan Switzerland it is surprising to encounter in the higher reaches of the Tuggenburg valley, a group of Tibetan children singing a lively marching song on their way to school.

There are now six Tibetan communities in eastern Switzerland at villages in these valleys off the beaten track of tourism. Under arrangements made by the Swiss Red Cross, about 100 more Tibetan refugees from the 35,000 now living in India, will be arriving here during the next few months. This will bring the total to more than 300, plus some 150 orphans placed with Swiss families.

Typical of those expatriate communities is "Tibeterheim Ennetheur," a big chalet on the hillside above Unterwasser, which, since last May, has sheltered 40 men, women and children, including two lamas—who give the children religious instruction in the evenings but during the day work at a textile mill further down the valley.

A dozen other men have been found jobs as carpenters, market gardeners, and laborers—one as an electrician. The two oldest ones, well into their sixties, cope with some of the heavier domestic chores in the chalet. Being skilled tailors, they also make and repair clothes for members of the community.

In addition, they maintain permanent supervision over the large camp containing maize, rice, barley, slowly fermenting to be ready for the feast days that are observed here with songs and dancing, as they were in Tibet itself—with the difference that such occasions are now generally compressed into a single evening.

Their Swiss employers say that the Tibetans learn quickly and are good workers—once they have understood that time here is disciplined and that they may no longer curl up and go to sleep in a corner if they feel tired.

The language difficulties are formidable, except in the village school, whose teacher found himself confronted last autumn with seven brown-eyed youngsters. The eldest, aged 13, spoke some English, but otherwise they knew no word of any tongue other than their own.

Today, they are fluent enough in Swiss German to take their place beside Swiss children in the classroom—and both the letter and the teacher have acquired a smattering of Tibetan. Two of the boys hope to go on later to university and study medicine "so they can be useful to our people."

The adults, too, have, on the whole, settled down well. The climate being much to their liking, and are demonstrating how quickly a people, traditionally distrustful of foreigners, can adapt themselves to a completely different way of life.

They also have completely overcome their barriers as men and women. One of the women, who takes her turn in the kitchen at preparing food as near as possible to what they would eat in Tibet—except for some of the more exotic spices—grew up in a Lhasa family mansion with 60 servants.

The men's earnings go into a communal fund, from which they receive 30 shillings monthly for spending money and the women 25 shillings. A few of the men from communities at other villages, who came from India two years ago, have bought themselves bicycles on which they ride to work and also, at the weekends, visit their fellow-countrymen in other valleys. One of them, informing his employer that on the way back to work he had knocked over a woman pedestrian, shrugged off the incident by saying: "No matter, she old."

The woman, fortunately, was not hurt, and the local police showed understanding.

In general, such manifestations of especially Tibetan characteristics are confined within the walls of the communities' chalets, most of which are now being enlarged to accommodate new arrivals. Innumerable cups of salty butter tea are drunk beneath pictures of the Dalai Lama; gaily painted masks are mounted on walls to ward off the evil eye; ornate jugs are kept replenished with water from the hill streams in religious observance; still regarded as especially propitious for any fresh endeavor are the 8th, 10th, 25th and 30th days of the month.

Nostalgic memories of a similar instrument heard among the high mountains of Tibet are aroused on a Sunday afternoon, when Swiss alpine players gather for practice, and deep, mellow notes echo across the Unterwasser valley. Memories, though, are only for the adults. The children, instead, look to a future bright with what for their fathers were unimaginable new prospects.

Airports Miff Phil

OTTAWA—Transport Minister Pickersgliff says he has ordered an investigation into the condition of some British Columbia airports which B.C. Highways Minister Phil Gallagher said were hazardous and unsafe.

However, he added that he hoped Mr. Gallagher's statements were not associated with "his plotting of planes if it's like his driving of cars."

Mr. Gallagher has a nationwide reputation for fast driving.

H. W. Hertridge (NDP, Kootenay West) had asked the transport minister whether he would look into the statements by the B.C. minister.

NEW DELHI—Lal Bahadur Shastri, 58, was formally sworn in Tuesday as prime minister to succeed the late Jawaharlal Nehru. His 16-member cabinet also was sworn-in to rule over India's 470,000,000 people.

CLEVELAND—Michigan governor George Romney refused to enter the Republican presidential race against Sen. Barry Goldwater, and former vice-president Richard Nixon said it may mean Goldwater will win the GOP nomination on the first ballot.

PANAMA CITY—Panamanian diplomat-socialite Roberto Arias was reported out of danger from four gun-shot wounds suffered Monday in a street corner political argument. His wife, Dama Margot Fuentayra, famed British ballerina, planned to fly to his side today from Bath, England, where she is starring in a music festival.

WHITEHORSE, Y.T.—The defence said Tuesday a psychiatrist will be called in the trial of Kenneth Richard Karset, 40, for the non-capital murder of his wife Fern. Mrs. Karset's nude body was found Feb. 16 lying on the floor of the Karset home. She had been beaten.

LONDON—A team of six British surgeons worked for several hours Monday to separate year-old Siamese twins joined at the head. One of the twins died 30 minutes after being separated. The twins, Beverley and Alison, were born to Mrs. James Fawcett, 32, of Chilwell, in the English Midlands.

U.S. Planes Damaged Say Reds

VIENTIANE, Laos (UPI)—Communist China said U.S. navy planes carried out a bombing and rocket attack Tuesday on Communist headquarters on the Plain des Jarres and that Communist anti-aircraft guns opened fire and damaged two of the U.S. planes.

Peking said the attacks were on Khong Khay, headquarters of the pro-Communist Pathet Lao on the plain 130 miles north of Vientiane. This is in the same area where two navy jets from the carrier USS Kitty Hawk were shot down Saturday and Sunday.

A Peking broadcast demanded the United States end "its savage intervention and aggression in Laos."

I'll Be Good Girl, Says Christine

LONDON (UPI)—Christine Keeler turned over the proverbial new leaf yesterday and promised to be a good girl from now on—especially if she can get into the movies.

Looking more like the nice girl next door than the sensual call-girl whose love affair with then war minister John Profumo nearly toppled the British government a year ago, Miss Keeler said she wanted to forget her morbid past and become a good actress.

ON HERBY

Christine pleaded that although she lacked experience as an actress, she wanted to be judged strictly on merit and not on her notoriety.

"I want to lead a new life in the future and forget about the past," she said in the living room of her $30,000 home in one with all our love, Mummy and Daddy." On a table in the elegant living room were 18 red roses with beauty purchased the three-day-old card which read, "to Christine's story attached house in Marylebone last October with some of the estimated $85,000 she received for a spicy series of memoirs she sold to a British Sunday newspaper."

No Injuries As Building Roars Down

PARKERSBURG, W. Va. (AP)—A three-story brick building collapsed with a roar in downtown Parkersburg but police said Tuesday there was enough warning to clear the area.

"It started cracking, and we think they got everybody out," said Patrolman R. F. Smith. The building was being renovated and workmen had spent the morning on a scaffold in front of the structure. They shouted to passers-by and occupants of the building to stand clear when the cracking began.

Immigration

John D Asks Probe In Detention Cases

OTTAWA (CP)—Opposition Leader Diefenbaker Tuesday called for the appointment of a one-man royal commission to investigate "very serious allegations" concerning the alleged confinement of men under immigration department warrants.

John Thomadakis, a 21-year-old Greek sailor, claims he was held in custody for 28 days without a court appearance. Lawyer Allan Mintz, who visited Thomadakis in Toronto's Don Jail, said he learned the names of 10 other men being held and he received information about nine others.

Mr. Diefenbaker, David Orlow (NDP—Windsor North) and New Democratic Leader Douglas all spoke in favor of an investigation.

TORONTO (CP)—L. R. Sterling, regional administrator for the immigration department, said Tuesday that 17 Greeks and one Spaniard are being held in Don Jail on immigration matters.

One of these men, Petros Vamvakaris, a Greek, is the only one who has not been sentenced by the court for illegal entry. Mr. Sterling said in an interview. He has been remanded until June 12 on a charge of illegal entry. Rev. John Koulouras of St. George's Greek Orthodox Church said in an interview

"scandal" that the wife of Forestry Minister Sauve is employed by the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation.

"Her presence in the corporation is a kind of blackmail to the directors of the CBC," Louis-Joseph Pigeon (PC—Joliette—l'Assomption—Montcalm) said in the Commons. "What would happen to the corporation that would dare get rid of the wife of a cabinet minister?"

He said Mr. Sauve was earning $35,000 and his wife was getting "between $15,000 and $20,000" from the CBC. How could a cabinet minister objectively discuss the CBC when his wife received a "fabulous salary" from the corporation?

He referred to Mrs. Sauve, who does interviews on the French network of the CBC, as a "Cleopatra of the 20th century."

Gas Brief Damaging Probe Told

PRINCE GEORGE (CP)—A brief presented by the city to the royal commission on gasoline prices contained "damaging and irresponsible suggestions," Douglas McK. Brown, counsel for Shell of Canada Limited, said Tuesday.

Mr. Brown objected to the brief's allegation that some oil companies "have acted in concert to maintain fixed prices on a non-competitive basis at least insofar as this area is concerned."

Questioned by Mr. Brown, Mayor Garvin Dezell said: "Prices are basically the same and there is no chance of a reduction unless there is a price war so there must be some common agreement."

Mayor Dezell later told commissioner Judge C. W. Morrow that he would accept some modifications to the brief's allegations.

told by General Marshall that had a big staff of American and British officers who took the general concept and began to study how to make it work in detail.

In drawing up your early version of the plan, was it detailed? I mean, did you pick Normandy, for instance?

Oh, no. Generally Normandy, but the plan was not at all detailed. Its purpose was to show what had to be done and to make clear the strategic considerations that made this thing almost an obvious operation.

No, the detailed planning started in the summer of 1943. Gen. Fred Morgan of the British Army was in charge. He

Fearful Day

Welcome Sight: B.C. Ship

By MIKE GADSBY

"The best surprise on an otherwise fearful day was when I saw the Prince Henry waiting to take us to Normandy," said Lt.-Col. Cyril Wightman, second in command of the Canadian Scottish Regiment on D-Day. To the then Maj. Wightman, now a B.C. Government employee, the "NR ferry Prince Henry was a familiar sight, as it was to anyone from the west coast of British Columbia.

FEARFUL

On June 6, 1944, the Prince Henry was commanded by Commodore Val Godfrey, now retired and living in Victoria.

"I felt a good deal of fear that day as we left for the beachhead," Lt.-Col. Wightman recalled. "But seeing the Prince Henry was like meeting an old friend."

He said that on the day of the invasion, he was not counting on coming back alive.

"Like most of the men who went over that day, I wondered how I would react when the bullets and bombs started flying, but that was something only time would tell."

Lt.-Col. Wightman had joined the regiment as a private in 1926, and was commissioned two years later. When the regiment was "out overseas, he went right along with it.

He got through D-Day unharmed, but soon after was seriously injured by a mortar bomb that killed seven men.

That brings up a point. How much initiative did you have as commander in picking your own staff?

Complete. General Marshall had told me earlier in the war in North Africa, "Now look, Eisenhower," he said, "any man who's serving under you is to be a man of your own choice. Either you accept him when he comes over, or you pick him yourself. For the simple reason, if any man is going to embarrass you by not performing as you see fit, it will be your own fault." Therefore any man who was here was by my choice, and this applied to the British too.

They asked me, for example, would I like General Montgomery or General Alexander to command the British forces under me.

I said, "Well, my preference is General Alexander." But when they thought he ought to be down there running the campaign in Italy, and when they offered General Montgomery, that was all right with me.

Why did you want Alexander rather than Montgomery?

Only this. I knew him better. I'd known him longer. He was a very quiet, very efficient type, and I liked him very, very much. I liked him personally.

Did you expect any difficulty with General Montgomery?

No. He was just a little different in type, that was all. I tell you, General Montgomery had a tremendous ability to get the utmost out of the British soldier. He was most skilful in making that a real weapon of the war.

NEXT: Gen. Eisenhower recalls with fondness and admiration one of the most controversial figures of the war, Gen. George Patton, a man he said "had an instinct for pursuit and that was his great capacity."

Rocks Seek Second

Vancouver	13	7	4	1	1	13	15
New Westminster	13	7	4	1	1	13	15
Victoria	13	7	4	1	1	13	15
Nanaimo	13	7	4	1	1	13	15

Last night's score: Nanaimo 4 at Vancouver 12.
Next game: tonight—New Westminster at Victoria.

Victoria Shamrocks can move into a tie for second place—a height which they haven't reached for a long while—at Memorial Arena tonight when they play New Westminster at 8.

Shamrocks trail Westminster by two points in the standings, both clubs having played 12 games. A Shamrock win would set things up for a real battle tomorrow when the clubs return to New Westminster.

Shamrocks haven't lost a game at home since May 6, and have only one loss in their last eight starts. And that was a protested contest won by Vancouver 9-8.

Vancouver gave further warning that it can run away with the league championship race last night by dumping hapless tail-enders from Nanaimo, 12-4.

Nanaimo goalie Alf Shuker was the only thing that stood between Vancouver and a massive. Shuker blocked 31 shots while getting little support from his defence.

Sid Warwick led Vancouver, which held a 5-1 lead at half-time, with three goals and two assists. Gordie Gimple and Pete Black also netted hat-tricks.

Only 452 fans watched the game.

Saving Them, Too

Boxla Boys Using Heads

By ROBIN JEFFREY
Most things looked the same as in past years at the minor lacrosse jamboree at Memorial Arena last night. The lacrosse was amazingly good. The players were amazingly noisy.

But there was one big difference—the game had gone to their heads. Not, however, in the derogatory sense, but all the players were wearing helmets.

When the senior league passed a rule requiring all players to wear protective head gear this season, minor lacrosse followed suit.

At a total cost of about $400 the association purchased enough plastic helmets of the type used extensively in minor hockey, to provide every boy with one. The helmets are issued before every game and collected after.

Officials feel the helmets have helped a great deal in preventing injuries.

But there's one problem. The kids hate them.

Take Alf for example. Alf drew a penalty in the midnet, 12-and-under game with Nanaimo. In the penalty box, "It's a good job that boy was wearing a helmet," he said grinning. "Al gave him quite a crack. With the helmet it didn't bother him, but without it he'd have had a real headache."

Al, however, remained unconvinced and said he didn't like helmets.

QUICK REPLY
Another player, a goalie in the 10-and-under division, was even more opposed to helmets. "Why did you want to be a goalie?" he was asked. "Because I don't like wearing those things," he replied, pointing at a helmeted colleague.

But whether the players like them or not, helmets are now part of minor lacrosse. And, judging by last night's performance, nobody is playing the game with any less enthusiasm because he has to wear a helmet.

Workers' Hits Were Timely

A triple down the right-field line. Keith Dugg dropped another base hit into right field for the only run that Transport Workers' pitcher Art Worth needed.

CHIT Kilduff followed with a meaningless single before George Holt regained his mastery of the Transport batters.

The two left-handers, Worth and Holt, showed good control and some neat pitching. Worth struck out six and walked one while allowing three hits. Holt fanned five and walked three.

Denver Half Way to Target Time Left Could Be Factor

By JIM TANG

Whether or not professional hockey will return to Victoria next season may well depend on whether Denver has until June 18 to sell its required quota of 2,000 season tickets—as claimed by Al Leader, president of the Western Hockey League, and Stafford Smythe, president of the Toronto Maple Leafs—or until June 30, as claimed by Donald Bolger, president of the Denver hockey club.

What is now known for certain is that should the Denver ticket drive fail, Toronto Maple Leafs will relocate its WHL club in Victoria.

That much was made clear yesterday. A report received by The Daily Colonist that the WHL was drafting two tentative schedules, one including Victoria and the other including Denver, was indirectly confirmed in a telephone conversation with Smythe.

"There is," Smythe said, "nothing new to report as yet. I made a commitment (to Denver) and I always keep my word."

Smythe, however, made it clear that Victoria was the only alternate site being considered.

"You know," he said "that I lived there for a year and I like your city. Are you people out there ready to support us if we come in?"

He added that he thought the chances of a move to Victoria were "about 50-50" and agreed that having a farm club in Victoria with his organization likely to become involved in arena construction in Vancouver would be advantageous.

GET THEIR TIME
"But," he warned, "Denver will get the time they were promised to meet their ticket quota."

However, both Smythe and Leader stated unequivocally, the Denver club was given six weeks from May 7 and had until June 18—which leaves only nine days—to put their ticket drive over the top.

From Denver, Bolger put in a disclaimer. Asked if the Denver club had until the end of the month or only until June 18, he said flatly that "we have until the end of the month."

MORE OPTIMISTIC
As for the ticket drive, Bolger sounded even more optimistic about his success than he did when he was questioned about it a week ago today.

"Pretty doggone good," he said easily when asked how the drive was progressing.

"I sure do," he responded emphatically when asked if he still thought it would succeed.

"Our campaign is just getting into full force," he added. "We're moving, not falling down on the job. We're going all out."

Bolger said the hockey club offices were "swamped" with ticket applications Monday and yesterday. Asked how many firm commitments had been made by fans, he estimated that "there must be about 1,000 now."

That's an increase of approximately 300 over the figure he estimated the drive had reached last Wednesday. It's progress that could make the difference between June 18 and June 30 the difference for Victoria.

The Hawks, who Monday had swapped Reg Fleming and Ab McDonald to get Doug Mohns, first came up with a second deal with Boston Bruins. This they gave Murray Balfour and Mike Draper, who played last season for St. Louis in the Central Professional Hockey League, to get penalty-killer Jerry Toppazzini and Matt Ravlich, a minor-league defenceman.

TO RED WINGS
With that one on the books, the Hawks then sent forward Ron Murphy and defenceman Art Erickson to Detroit Red Wings. In return, Chicago got defencemen John Mink and Ian Cushman and centre Art Stratton.

Bruins, drafting first, took Jim Mikol, Toronto-owned defenceman, from Cleveland, later picked John Gravel, a young defenceman who played last season with Toledo in the CPHL.

Toronto Maple Leafs drafted four players, including defencemen Marc Reaume, traded to Detroit during the 1959-60 season for Red Kelly. The other three were forwards Lou Jankowski and Gordie Redoli and defenceman Sandy Huesel from Denver, the Toronto-supported WHL club. It was just a bookkeeping affair involving Toronto-owned players.

NHL Runs Refs

MONTREAL — Western Hockey League referees for the coming season will be under the jurisdiction of Carl Voss, referee-in-chief for the National Hockey League.

Voss, as he already does for the American and Central Professional Hockey Leagues, will allocate referees for WHL games. As many as 14 different referees, including, at times, those who work most regularly in the NHL, will be used in WHL games.

Maroons Base for Team

The Canadian Amateur Hockey Association has attacked the problem of raising a suitable representative hockey team from another angle.

The 1965 world hockey tournament team will be formed from the Winnipeg Maroons, some players from the 1964 Olympic team and others. It will be coached by Gord Simpson, coach of the Maroons and Father David Bauer will assist in the last two months.

Father Bauer coached Canada's 1964 Olympic entry.

The CAHA also expects that this new club will be basis of the 1968 Olympic team and hopes to have two years of practice before the showdown in second four times in the U.S. Open, says he may switch to a pendulum putter for short puts in another try at taking the only major golf title he has never won.

ALBERTA

ALBERTA government still is firmly behind the bid of the Calgary Olympic Development Association for the 1972 Winter Olympics, despite the fact the Association lost in its try for the 1968 Games.

B.C. Wins Again

VANCOUVER — A British Columbia mainland cricket league team, led by the outstanding bowling of Bill Cullen and the batting of Eric Gladden, handed the touring New Zealand team its second loss yesterday, 101-84. The New Zealanders had lost to another B.C. team Saturday.

Gladden scored 56 runs for the B.C. side which batted first. New Zealand appeared to be well on top at the tea break as it had 89 runs for seven wickets, and needed only 13 to win.

But Cullen got George McConnell caught at mid-on, and bowled Robert Cunis and captain Basil McBurney in the next over to retire New Zealand at 94.

Result of IWA Vote Known at Noon Today

Result of the vote among 25,000 coast IWA members on a formula to settle their contract dispute will be announced at 12:30 noon today, union officials said last night. The men are expected to vote yes by a small margin.

Urgent UN Session Demanded by Cyprus

From AP-UPI

NICOSIA—The Cyprus government has demanded an urgent session of the United Nations Security Council to consider threats by Turkey of military intervention in the dispute between rival Greek and Turkish factions on the island.

In Athens Greece maintained a military alert against possible Turkish intervention but there was no indication that the situation was critical.

POISED TO STRIKE

Nor was there any indication from Turkey that an invasion force was poised to strike despite rumors and invasion-scare reports.

In Ankara Republic prime minister said that he does not intend to go to Washington, at the invitation of President Johnson, to discuss the Cyprus crisis.

NEW YORK

President Makarios of Cyprus said his foreign minister Spyros Kyprianou would fly to New York to request the UN meeting.

Makarios said Kyprianou will demand that the UN "put an end to the unacceptable activities of Turkey (which are) in utter disregard and defiance of the United Nations charter and the United Nations Security Council resolution on Cyprus of March 13."

Welcome

Arriving in Ottawa's humid heat, West German Chancellor Ludwig Erhard received most cordial welcome any German has received from government in 30 years. Talks with Prime Minister Pearson were begun immediately and continue today.

Bill Approved

One Defence Chief Will Run Forces

OTTAWA (CP)—The Commons defence committee Tuesday night approved without amendment the government's bill to replace the armed forces chiefs of staff with a single defence chief.

The approval followed a final argument between Defence Minister Hellyer and former Conservative defence minister Douglas Harkness.

Mr. Harkness said creation of a single adviser to the defence minister sets a dangerous precedent. This system had been tried in Britain and other countries and found wanting.

Mr. Hellyer made a final rebuttal to the three chief critics of the bill: Mr. Harkness, R. S. Malpas, publisher of the Windsor Free Press and a wartime brigadier, and retired Air Marshal W. A. Curtis, former chief of the air staff.

RIGHT SOLUTION

He said their views had been carefully analyzed but that he feels that the government's proposal is the right solution.

Mr. Hellyer admitted there will be great problems to overcome in putting the new system into practice.

The minister said defence decisions will be taken after full discussion with the defence council, which will comprise the minister, a senior minister, deputy minister, chief and vice-chief of defence staff, chairman of the Defence Research Board and a parliamentary secretary in event one were appointed.

Air Chief Marshal Frank Miller has already been designated chief of defence staff. At the afternoon meeting of the committee, Maj.-Gen. W. H. S. MacKlin, retired army adjutant-general, said Canada has "squandered" billions on defence since the Second World War, mostly on supplying the RCAF with jet interceptors that could never do the job for which they were intended.

In a blistering attack on the RCAF, Gen. MacKlin told the committee that for years Canada has had a multi-million-dollar air force but it never has had any real air power. In its 62-year history the RCAF never had been able to support the army in battle. In Korea the army relied on the U.S. Air Force.

FAR REACHING

Gen. MacKlin was called to testify on the government's bill for defence integration, which he described as "important and far-reaching."

However, he said the government's legislation goes "just about far enough." He said it would be "very bad" to push it to the next stage—unification—where all three forces would be put into one uniform. This would wreck the traditions in each service.

Injured Tot Satisfactory

Two-and-a-half-year-old Susan Wong, 934 Green, was in satisfactory condition last night after running into the path of a taxi outside her home yesterday morning.

She was taken to Royal Jubilee Hospital by her father.

Sawmill Back At Work

Ideal Sawmills Ltd. on Tyee Road which burned to the ground two weeks ago was back in business yesterday — using a portable sawmill.

Mill owner Mohan Singh Johal said last night plans are being drawn for a permanent structure.

A Victoria High School girl Sue Newmark, 2522 Vancouver, has won a $100 top prize in the Canadian National Exhibition annual high school art contest.

Her black and white mural depicts the exploration of Canada from 1500 to 1850. David Thorne, also of Victoria High School, won the B.C. provincial prize of $15 for his oil paint on canvas mural.

General aims and structure of the Greater Victoria Historic Buildings Trust will be discussed at a luncheon Thursday.

Dr. Hugh Borsman, appointed to head a special organizational group set up at an earlier meeting attended by 100 community leaders, said there will also be selection of officers to serve until the first annual meeting in the fall.

The St. John Ambulance save-a-life training program, held for the first time this year, last night attracted 65 students for training in Holger-Neilson and mouth-to-mouth respiration.

Similar courses will be held at 7:30 p.m. June 16, 23 and 30, at St. John Ambulance headquarters, 941 Pandora.

Honored Friday

Former students from all over Vancouver Island have been invited to a reception in Nanaimo Senior Secondary School at 8 p.m. Friday for Mrs. Frank Milmore, the former Lillian Carter, who will retire soon after 43 years of service. Victoria teacher Jack Loviter will speak on behalf of all former students. —(Agnes Flett)

Holdup Trial

Police Bribes Denied

An attempt to show police had offered inducement to a convict to make him testify against the accused was thwarted in Saanich police court yesterday when the witness refused to let himself be shaken by long and probing cross-examination.

Clarence William Kraft, charged with armed robbery, is acting in his own defence. He kept convicted bank robber Jean Robitaille on the witness stand for two hours while he cross-examined him.

INDUCEMENTS CLAIMED

Before Robitaille spoke one word of evidence, Kraft asked that his testimony be disregarded because, Kraft claimed, he had been offered inducements to make certain statements.

Kraft claimed the police had offered threat or inducement by saying charges of criminal conspiracy, car theft or abduction might be laid against Robitaille.

MOTIONS REFUSED

Magistrate William Ostler denied the motion as he denied a similar one at the end of the cross-examination, made on the grounds that the events described by Robitaille occurred while the witness was under the influence of drugs.

Robitaille, sentenced to 10 years after pleading guilty to the bank robbery at Saanich, April 24, testified Kraft planned the robbery, cashed a cheque at the bank and gave Robitaille money with which to buy straw hats and sun glasses used by the robbers.

$50,000 INVOLVED

He told the court Kraft said there was about $50,000 involved. He also said Kraft provided the three pistols and shells.

Robitaille said that after the robbery the four drove to a mountain and divided the money and buried the guns.

CRAVED DRUGS

Under Kraft's cross-examination, Robitaille admitted he had taken drugs on the Friday, the day of the robbery but had none after that. He said he started to need drugs Saturday, and by Monday the craving was unbearable.

On that day he phoned the police because he was sick and needed drugs. They arrived to find the money, his share, scattered on the floor where he had put it because "money didn't mean anything any more."

SUICIDE BID

He admitted a suicide attempt because he was "ashamed of what he had done and not in order to get police sympathy. The attempt failed when the electric wire he planned to hang himself with proved too weak.

He denied Saanich police had promised him a doctor as a bribe to make him talk knowing that a drug addict in "withdrawal horrors" would welcome a doctor. Robitaille said he wanted a doctor because he was sick, not craving.

DENIES ABDUCTION

He also denied Kraft's suggestion that he abducted the man who brought the U-drive car to the bank and said "I never put a gun on him."

He consistently denied he had been alone with detective Joe Armstrong at any time, despite Kraft's effort to elicit an admission of inducement from him.

He also denied that he had been promised help in getting parole, or in getting transferred from B.C. penitentiary.

Rites Set For Sportsman

Private funeral services will be held on Thursday for well-known city sportsman Edwin Newman, who died in Royal Jubilee Hospital yesterday.

Born in La Mache, South America, Mr. Newman came to Victoria 58 years ago. For a number of years he owned and operated a parts business and, in recent years, he worked as an engineer for New Method Laundries.

WIDE INTERESTS

Mr. Newman was a champion billiard, snooker, baseball and football player as well as a baseball umpire.

He is survived by his widow, Margaret, and daughter, Susan, at home, 2322 Vancouver; and a nephew, Bill Newman.

Funeral services will be held in McCall Bros' Family Chapel, Canon George Middle officiating, followed by cremation.

Injury Slight

Joseph Smolowski, 48, of 207 Burnside, was treated in St. Joseph's Hospital for chest pains and released after his car was involved in a three-car crash at Burnside and Harriet shortly after 6 p.m. Monday.

B.C. Mental Health Policy

New Clinic, New Care

By JACK FRY

The provincial government will build a mental health clinic for out patients at 1504 Fort Street.

Department of public works has called for tenders on an estimated $30,000 job of converting a three-storey apartment there into a new clinic.

The government came under a fierce attack from the opposition during the last session of the legislature because of its "do-nothing" mental health policies.

The new mental health facilities—with increased staff—will replace a mental health centre on Superior Street recognized by the authorities as "grossly inadequate," an official said last night.

Health Minister Eric Martin was out of town and not available for comment on the new Fort Street development.

Conversion of the 15,000-square-foot apartment building is in line with the government's new mental health care policy of "do-nothing" mental health policies.

ing them from their friends and relatives.

But the new clinic will operate on an out-patient basis and will be only an intermediate step towards an ultimate goal of in-patient bed care.

Dr. Charles Gregory, director of the mental health clinic, said yesterday the centre on Superior Street provides "very limited service" because accommodation is so restricted that emphasis is placed on consultation rather than treatment.

CHILD CLINIC

"The present buildings were a legacy from the child guidance clinic which operated here until 1962," when an adult clinic was moved in and the two clinics maintained under the name mental health centre," he said.

Day care service for both children and adults will be offered in the new clinic, along with group and family therapy when it is required.

ADDITIONAL STAFF

There are enough rooms in the apartment building to make it suitable for different kinds of treatment, and to make it practical to hire additional staff.

Two new physicians and a social worker probably will be hired for the new clinic, and the staff gradually will be increased until there is a complement of 19 physicians, psychologists, social workers, nurses and clerical staff.

Seal-d tenders for the apartment conversion will be received by the public works minister until 2 p.m. June 24, when they will be opened in public.

Ald. Edgelow also suggested that the "far lake" at Thetis Lake be dragged to remove weed and lilies which make it dangerous to swimmers or else be posted with danger signs. He said crowded conditions on existing beaches at Thetis will soon force swimmers to seek the more remote spots.

SUNDAY LABOR

Ald. A. W. Toone registered a strong objection to use of volunteer labor at Thetis Lake and other city parks on Sunday. He stressed this was not an objection to the form of community effort which saw new sand dumped on several beaches in recent weeks.

"But I maintain that it isn't necessary for men and machines to work on Sunday," he said.

Parks administrator W. H. Warren reported that he is studying the possible use of pumping equipment to put new sand from the seabottom offshore onto low-lying beaches such as Gonzales.

It was prompted by a recent traffic accident on the narrow, winding road through the woods on the southeastern section of the park.

Ald. Mooney said establishment of one-way traffic on Lover's Lane was considered and rejected as impracticable.

"It was also suggested that we widen the road by removing some of the trees," the chairman said. "But I said no dice."

Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow led the attack on the proposal. "Lover's Lane is one of the most delightful drives in Beacon Hill Park," he said.

Car Ban Opposed For Lovers' Lane

A proposal that Lover's Lane in Beacon Hill Park be closed to all vehicular traffic met with stiff opposition in city traffic committee yesterday.

Traffic chairman Ald. Millard Mooney said the proposal originated in the official traffic commission, an advisory body which meets in private.

It was prompted by a recent traffic accident on the narrow, winding road through the woods on the southeastern section of the park.

Typhoid Outbreak 'Could Happen Here'

By IAN STREET

A typhoid outbreak like the one in Aberdeen, Scotland, is "within the realm of possibility" here because of inadequate sewer services in Greater Victoria, metro health board was told yesterday.

Chief medical health officer Dr. John Whitbread made the statement when a report detailing deficiencies in sewerage systems and outfalls throughout the area was tabled at the regular board meeting.

BEFORE OUTBREAK

Dr. Whitbread said the report dated May 21 was written before the Scottish typhoid outbreak reached epidemic proportions. The report quotes findings in Zermatt, Switzerland, in 1963, and Burnaby, in 1959.

The medical health officer said Aberdeen is "merely another incident" of this type.

Four typhoid cases in Burnaby five years ago were traced to a typhoid carrier by sampling ditch water in the vicinity of the outbreak. The findings: A defective septic tank . . . resulted in effluent contaminated with typhoid bacilli being discharged into a ditch.

SEPTIC TANKS

Dr. Whitbread added: "Carriers (of the disease) may be present in our communities, and the pollution of ditches and streams from the septic tanks might result in an epidemic in this area. . . ."

The danger is increased, the report said, by the fact that "we have large numbers of tourists from other countries, where the carrier rate might be higher."

REPORT TOWN

The Zermatt epidemic was also traced to a typhoid carrier contaminating sewage, which due to defective sewage mains and water pipes, got into the water supply of the Swiss resort town.

Dr. Whitbread told the board that letters have been sent to all physicians in Greater Victoria advising them that metro health authorities are building a card index file on all returning travellers from U.K. "Several dozen" cards are already on file and the number is expected to grow into the hundreds.

WITHOUT DELAY

No attempt is being made to contact the travellers but they have been advised to report to their own physician without delay if they become ill during the next two or three weeks.

Dr. Whitbread said that since an earlier report on sewage systems and septic tanks in February, 1963, there has been "no improvement whatever in the conditions." The latest report five new sources of pollution in Saanich, Central Saanich, Colwood and View Royal.

Answer at Conference?

Sewer Question Vexing Saanich

By HARVEY SHEPHERD

Saanich hopes for some answers about the vexing question of sewers at the June 20 conference involving capital region municipal officials and Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell.

Saanich council's works committee agreed last night to defer until then consideration of sewerage the large north Gordon Head area—an area almost as large as Oak Bay which would be the last large area to be sewered in the eastern part of the municipality.

REPORT HEARD

The committee heard a report on the north Gordon Head sewer question from municipal engineer Neville Life.

Ratepayers in an area bounded, roughly speaking, by a currently sewered area, Gordon Head Road and Feltham Road are to vote June 20 on a $65,000 sewer project.

Similar votes are expected in the fall on two other limited areas.

NEED NOT WAIT

Mr. Life's report said work on these areas need not await any further sewer study but, for engineering reasons, he proposed a six-month wait for results of a metropolitan Victoria sewer survey before going ahead with the rest of the area.

The committee also voted to: ● Take up the offer of the Town and Country shopping centre owners to contribute $15,000 if council will reconstruct Saanich Road between Seymour and Douglas, at a cost of about $40,000.

● Continue for another year the practice of having half the municipal road pavement marking done by municipal crews and the other half by contractor in order to compare costs.

● Defer consideration of building a sidewalk on Glenford between the Patricia Bay Highway and the curling rink until more is known about this year's sidewalk financing situation.

Mill Stream

Board Fights Scheme

Metro health board of Greater Victoria will oppose any application to discharge treated domestic effluent into Mill Stream.

The decision, taken at yesterday's board meeting, followed the disclosure in Tuesday's Colonist that J. L. Phelps will apply to the provincial pollution control board for permission to install a sewage treatment plant on his 900-lot subdivision north of Trans-Canada Highway in the Langford area.

RUNS INTO HARBOR

The plant would discharge fully-treated effluent into Mill Stream, which in turn runs into Esquimalt harbor at Parsons Bridge.

Coun. Joseph Casey, Saanich representative on the health board, said he could not wholly agree with the decision to oppose the Phelps application.

PLANTS EFFICIENT

"In eastern Canada and on the Prairies there are many cities and towns with sewage treatment plants so efficient that the effluent is discharged right into the lake or creek from which the community takes its drinking water," he said.

Recreational use of Prospect Lake may be banned sometime in the future unless "active steps" are taken to correct any faulty sewage disposal facilities on the lake perimeter, Greater Victoria metro health board was told yesterday.

The information was contained in a report by chief medical health officer Dr. John Whitbread which re-affirmed previous statements that the garbage dump on Hartland Road isn't a public health menace.

It urged residents around Prospect Lake to "take active steps" to obtain an adequate and safe water supply, preferably by connecting with Saanich municipal system, and warned again that all water taken from Prospect Lake for domestic use should be made safe by boiling. Bringing existing septic tanks around the lake up to standard will serve to "minimize any future pollution of the lake," the report said.

"Unless steps are taken (to repair faulty septic tanks) we may find this contamination will increase to such a degree that it passes the standards required for recreational use."

"If this occurs it may be necessary to post . . . signs indicating (Prospect Lake) waters are unfit for swimming and other recreational uses."

The report added that Victoria and Saanich should determine over how long a period in the can and not enough worry about people on the side roads," he said.

Russell Stark, vice-president of the View Royal group, was pleased to see the highways department has after a number

LAST FATALITY

The last fatality there was Mrs. Mae Preston, who died from injuries received in a two-car collision last October. A coroner's jury on Jan. 30 this year added a rider to its verdict, calling for installation of a mercury vapor light there.

Community spokesman in the Helmcken area said yesterday the lights are a step in the right direction, but fall short of the traffic control light which is needed there.

Lorne Falconer, 1279 Burnside, president of the Strawberry Vale Community Club, said that children trying to cross the highway on their way to View Royal Elementary School "don't have much of a chance when traffic comes whipping along there at 50 miles an hour."

"They need a flashing light or a stop light here because someday they're going to get somebody—a kid will dart out across the highway and bango, he gets it."

MOST OF TIME

Archie Kay, 23 Erskine Lane, said: "A proper stop light will be a monument for somebody because people will have to die before the government does anything."

Joseph Sutherland, president of the View Royal Community and Ratepayers' Association, thinks an automatic traffic control device should be installed, remaining green most of the time for highway traffic.

"Keep 'em rolling, that seems to be the attitude of police and the minister of highways—there's too much worry about moving traffic as fast as they

Family Conference

Mrs. Fulton Raps Report

By BRENDA LARGE

OTTAWA (CP) — Mrs. E. Davis Fulton, wife of the former federal justice minister, sharply criticized a 30-page report presented Sunday night at the opening session of the Canadian Conference on the Family by Montreal sociologist Dr. Philippe Garigue.

Mrs. Fulton, a former social worker and a vice-president of the conference, was taking part in a panel discussion dealing with Dr. Garigue's report, "permanence and change in ideas on the family."

She called the report, which dealt with philosophical and sociological concepts of the family from biblical times to the present, "abstract, nebulous and difficult to understand."

Mrs. Fulton, whose husband now is British Columbia Conservative party leader, told the 250 sociologists and welfare workers attending the first session of the four-day meeting that Canadians would have to update their thinking about the family.

"Legitimacy and juvenile delinquency are no longer private problems but problems of society."

"The trials and tribulations of modern families arise because modern social arrangements have stripped the family of its traditional positions and patterns of authority."

Mrs. Fulton later told a reporter that one example of these "modern social arrangements" was the way families entertained themselves today.

"There aren't enough group activities for families now. Entertainment, particularly television, comes from outside the home."

The modern family was in trouble, said Mrs. Fulton, because its traditions values were being attacked from all sides.

"Children are told that sex is sinful, yet we use it constantly to sell our products."

She left yesterday by train from Vancouver for St. John's, Nfld., to attend the bi-annual meeting of the Canadian Nurses' Association being held from June 14 to 19. She has been appointed one of the delegates to the meeting from British Columbia.

New Home Recipe Reducing Plan

It's simple how quickly one can lose pounds of unwanted fat right in your own home. Make this home recipe yourself. It's easy, no trouble at all and costs little. Just go to your drug store and ask for four ounces of Naran Concentrate. Pour this into a pint bottle and add enough grapefruit juice to fill the bottle. Take two tablespoons full a day and needed and follow the Naran Plan. If your first purchase does not leave you a simple easy way to lose bulky fat and help regain slender more graceful curves; if reducible pounds and inches of excess fat don't disappear from neck, chin, arms, abdomen, hips, calves and ankles just return the empty bottle for your money back. Follow this easy way endorsed by many who have tried this plan and help bring back alluring curves and graceful slenderness. Note how quickly blood disappears—how much better you feel. More alive, youthful appearing and active.

LAST MEETING

Victoria Kiwanisians will hold the final 1963-64 meeting at the clubhouse of the Upperlands Golf Club on Wednesday, June 10. Friendship hour at 6:30, with dinner at 7 p.m.

Bride Carries Roses

At a ceremony performed by Father M. Costello in St. Andrew's Cathedral on Saturday afternoon, Maurine Anne, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Evans, Vancouver, B.C. was united in marriage with Mr. Donald Albert Bellale, son of Mr. and Mrs. Donat Bellale of Moose Jaw, Sask.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was lovely in a gown of white norganza over taffeta styled with a V neckline and front panels of lace with the skirt falling into a slight train. Her scalloped edged veil was held by a crown of crystal teardrops and seed pearls. Red roses and stephanotis were in her bouquet.

Attendants were Mrs. Jim Chaplin, matron of honor, Misses Marilyn Evans and Rita Taylor, bridesmaids.

They wore dresses of apple green norganza styled with scalloped necklines and bell skirts. Their whimsy hats were apple green and they carried yellow roses and white carnations.

Mr. Louis Bellale was best man and showing guests to the pews were Mr. Maurice Bellale and Clarence Finegan.

A sit down supper was held later at the Carlton Club when Mr. Edwin Cliff proposed the toast to the bride. An orchestra was also in attendance.

The bride's going away costume was a cherry wool suit, matching hat and white accessories. They will make their home in Victoria.

LUNCHEON MEETING

Equalized United Church Women will meet in the Church Hall, Admirals at Lyall Street, at 1 p.m., Wednesday, June 10. It will take the form of a luncheon meeting and all women of the Church are invited to attend. Baby-sitting will be provided.

Earlier Sunday, Governor-General Vanier officially opened the conference with a plea for Canadian families to recognize and resume their spiritual heritage.

Gen. Vanier, who with his wife is sponsoring the conference, said delegates must investigate honestly and realistically those factors that endanger family life.

"It is time for men with serious responsibilities in society to take stock together of the problems facing us. The future is in our hands."

Prime Minister Pearson took part in the 50-minute religious ceremony opening the conference. He led more than 1,500 guests assembled on the Government House lawns in a prayer for the success of the meeting.

Guest speaker at the Comitas Club meeting at the home of Mrs. W. G. Pendray was Miss M. Bradley who is in charge of the medical social services at Royal Jubilee Hospital. Miss Bradley, in telling of her work with patients, impressed her audience by her dedication to her work. Invited guests were Mrs. Ted Pistell and Miss Donna Pistell.

Mrs. R. C. Newby presided at a recent business meeting at the Tuxedo Drive home of Mrs. A. C. Dimock. Following the business, two novels by Hugh McLennan, Two Solitudes, and Seven Rivers of Canada were reviewed by Mrs. D. G. Ferguson and Mrs. Alan Leith.

A happy ending for the year's activities was enjoyed by Metro-politan United Church. Mrs. T. Sewell, president, made the presentation. A musical program, arranged by Mrs. J. R. Morrison, highlighted the meeting. Miss Doris C. B. Jameson presided at the tea Logan, accompanied by refreshment table.

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: People write to you with gripes and complaints just to get things off their chests. I guess that's what I am doing—letting off steam.

I am a boy 17 who just heard my father say for the 100th time—"When I was your age..." Why do parents use this phrase? It's like saying a red cape in front of a bull. It doesn't matter what my father says after he starts out like that because I'm already mad. Don't parents realize they are not our age and the way they act it's hard to believe they ever were. Things are different today. For example, a kid without wheels is the same as dead. If I asked any of the top five girls in our crowd to go to the beachers on a bus, she'd laugh in my face. When I told my dad he'd have to jar loose with $35 for the prom he almost popped a blood vessel. He said, "When I was your age $35 fed a family of five for a week." Well, maybe it did, but I can't help that now. If you print this letter please give my dad advice, not me. He needs it—TROMPED ON.

Dear Tromped: Maybe you were tromped on, Buster, but if you were, it wasn't hard enough. You bet things are different today, and one of the differences is that kids are allowed to shoot off their mouths like they've been brushing their teeth with gunpowder. If you have to come up with $35 for the prom why don't you try earning it?

Dear Ann Landers: My husband is a fine man in many ways. When I read in your column about the troubles some wives have I consider myself fortunate. But please tell me, Ann, if there is anything I can do to help my husband with a fault that seems to be getting worse all the time. He exaggerates something awful.

If he buys six pieces of equipment for his shop he has to tell our friends he bought twelve. If he makes a profit of $4,000, the figure becomes $9,000. He told a group of relatives last night that he made a speech the other evening to 1,600 salesmen. I was present and there were about 250 people there.

Why can't he tell anything straight?—E.M.V.

Dear E.M.V.: People who must double and triple everything are not satisfied with themselves or their achievements. They want to knock everybody dead, and they don't think the truth will do the job so the facts and figures multiply in their mouths.

What they don't understand is that their friends get wise and then don't believe a word they put out.

Dear Ann Landers: I grew up next door to a very fine young woman. That woman is now married and has four children. Her husband died six years ago. I've been married 18 years but my wife and I were never blessed with a family. I've always been very fond of the children of my former next-door friend.

The oldest boy will be graduating from high school next year and I'd like to send him to college. His mother is unable to do so. This boy is bright, he's a good athlete and does not smoke or drink. As a stipulation I want the boy to promise he will continue to stay away from tobacco and alcohol.

My wife says I have no right to impose my standards on others. What is your opinion?—OLD TRUANT.

Dear O.T.: I don't agree with your wife. You are not imposing your standards on anyone. You are making the boy an offer, and a handsome one at that. It's his choice to accept it or reject it.

Gas, Hoses Kill Gory Race Riot

TUSCALOOSA, Ala. (AP)—Hundreds of Negroes shouting "we want freedom" defied a ban on street demonstrations Tuesday and engaged in a bloody clash with police.

The outbreak of violence, involving mostly teenagers, was touched off by the refusal of city officials to let them carry on a planned protest march against segregation.

Angry Negroes inside a church threw bottles, rocks and even chairs at the blue-helmeted officers surrounding the building. Police restored order 45 minutes later with fire hoses and tear gas.

Police arrested 96 persons, including 15 juveniles who were turned over to juvenile court. The others were charged with a variety of offences, including

Whites Stomp Whites

ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla. (AP)—White men and youths kicked and beat civil rights demonstrators Tuesday night in an outbreak of violence near this old city's slave market after more than 200 persons marched downtown.

Special target of the hit-and-run attack was the small number of white demonstrators. Several white men were knocked to the pavement, then methodically kicked and stomped.

A big white man assaulted one white demonstrator as the marchers filed along the sidewalk two abreast. The demonstrator threw his hands around his head and groaned to the thud of repeated kicks.

The march came only hours after a federal judge had ordered police not to interfere with demonstrations.

'Wealthiest Ever' In White House

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Johnson's family is "one of the wealthiest ever to occupy the White House," with holdings calculated at $9,000,000, the Washington Evening Star said Tuesday.

B.C. School Textbook Liberally Misleading

'Staunch Tory' King

VANCOUVER (CP)—Mackenzie King was a staunch Conservative — true or false?

According to a B.C. school textbook it is true.

History student John W. Groom said the textbook — "This Golden Age of Conflict" — claims that "in 1947 Mackenzie King celebrated his 20th year as Conservative prime minister, but the following year was defeated by the Liberal Louis St. Laurent."

J. F. K. English, deputy education minister, said the error had been corrected.

Sunshine Means Trouble

Fraser Nears Flood Mark

The runoff-swollen Fraser River rose to within two feet of the flood-danger level in the Fraser Valley yesterday, and officials ordered 24-hour patrols on 240 miles of dikes.

Some minor flooding of farmland was reported, but biggest concern was the forecast for warm, sunny weather through most of B.C.

A spell of hot, dry weather would melt the last of the snow quickly and probably bring on flood conditions, although officials said they were not certain how much snowpack was left.

Officials, checking emergency civil defence supplies in the valley, said the next few days would determine whether serious flooding would occur.

Meanwhile, three families left their homes as water seeped over a farm near Agassiz, and nine more prepared to leave. In Matsqui, water rolled over undiked farmland and covered roads with 18 inches of water. At Hope, the Fraser crept over a riverbank street.

Hat Floats on River—Boy Under It

NORTH KAMLOOPS, B.C. (CP)—Charlie Davis watched idly as a red cowboy hat floated down the swollen Thompson River Monday. Suddenly he saw a child's face under the hat.

Davis jumped into the river and pulled Harry Madsen, 3, to safety.

Police said the boy, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Madsen, had fallen into the river while throwing rocks from a retaining wall.

Davis said he didn't see the boy fall. He had just come out of his apartment block to dispose of some garbage.

Montana Disaster Mounts

23 NOW DEAD 100 MISSING

From AP, UPI

The greatest flood in Montana's history spilled muddy water over 20,000 square miles yesterday as searchers proceeded with the grim task of locating at least 23 known dead and 100 or more missing.

And in Alberta, flood waters began to recede from a wide area in the south of the province, leaving a grim landscape of ruin and destruction.

Much of the flood's punch in Montana was yet to come and although thousands were homeless or stranded and damage ranged into the millions, even greater destruction was expected. The inundation was described by Montana National Guard officers as the greatest natural disaster in the state's history.

BRIDGES, TOWNS HIT

President Johnson listed seven northwestern counties as disaster areas. Fed by rampaging mountain streams, major rivers on both sides of the continental divide swept away concrete and steel highway bridges, made their way through communities and destroyed livestock and crops.

Chief trouble-maker was the Sun River, a mountain stream that joins the Missouri River at Great Falls. The Sun carried the massive run-off of late melting snowpacks and five days of heavy rains measuring up to six inches.

CITY AWAITS CREST

At Great Falls, a city of 70,000 a flood crest of 24 to 25 feet was expected in the early hours of this morning. This would be five feet higher than the 1953 flood on the Sun which caused damage of $5,042,400.

Upstream from Great Falls, the flood crest was visible from the air as it rolled along

Mac-Powell Strike Legal Says MacEachen's Aide

OTTAWA (CP)—James Byrne, parliamentary secretary to Labor Minister MacEachen, said Tuesday night the office workers' strike against the MacMillan, Bloedel and Powell River Company in British Columbia is a "legitimate legal strike" and he said the federal labor department should not interfere. (See also Page 11.)

Two Die of Plant Fumes Ambulance Kills Third

MONTREAL (CP)—Two persons died Tuesday after inhaling ammonia fumes at a plant in suburban Lachine and a third man was killed in a collision between his car and a police ambulance rushing to the scene.

Leo Montreuil, 25, and Moise Clayton, 29, both of Montreal, were overcome by the fumes and died. Arthur Breton, 35, was killed in the collision. A gas leak was discovered after 15 employees of the Smith and Nephew toiletries firm suddenly became ill. Several persons were treated at the plant and nine others were taken to hospital.

Second Senate Reading Given B.C. Bank Bill

OTTAWA (CP)—A private bill to establish the Bank of British Columbia received second reading—approval in principle—in the Senate Tuesday after its sponsor rejected argument that the proposed institution would be unconstitutional.

Senators—Liberals and Conservatives—who called on division said earlier they would approve second reading only for the purpose of getting a chance to question the sponsors of the bill before a Senate committee.

Peaceful Death at Home Claims Lord Beaverbrook

LONDON (CP)—Canadian-born Lord Beaverbrook, the millionaire publisher whose newspapers became part of the British way of life, died Tuesday at his home near Leatherhead in Surrey. He was 85.

One of the most famous Canadians to settle in Britain, the Presbyterian minister's son from the Ontario manse, who always remembered his later boyhood in the Maritimes, died peacefully surrounded by his family.

His son Max Aitken, who will carry on as head of the Beaverbrook newspaper empire, said the Beaver, as he was universally known, had been seriously ill for the last week.

Death came only two weeks after a memorable birthday anniversary dinner at London's Dorchester Hotel given for him by a fellow Canadian-born publisher, Lord Thomson.

Once penniless, Beaverbrook built up a fortune in the cement business in Canada and left at the age of 28 to start a new career in Britain. After the First World War he bought The

His Birthplace Forgot Beaver

MAPLE, Ont. (UPI)—This tiny Ontario township, birthplace of a minister's son who became one of the great men of his time, hardly seems to remember him at all.

There is no monument to William Maxwell "Max" Aitken, Lord Beaverbrook, born here May 25, 1879. The St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church in which his father preached still stands, but the manse in which Beaverbrook was born has been torn down and replaced.

There is a memorial to Rev. William Aitken, but none for his son.

The Aitkens moved to northern New Brunswick when Max was a year old, and there is no one alive who remembers the family.

But Newcastle Remembered, Grieved

NEWCASTLE, N.B. (UPI)—This town of 5,000 people was plunged into sorrow by the news of the death of Lord Beaverbrook, a man it had known first as Max Aitken, son of the Presbyterian minister.

Lord Beaverbrook did much for the town. He converted the manse where he grew up into a library, donating 1,500 books to its shelves. He gave the town a rink, a theatre, a town hall. He gave chimneys and an organ to the church.

When the district gave him

the town square, he refurbished it — then created a fund to ensure that the town need never spend a penny for maintenance of any of his gifts.

"We have lost a good friend," said Mayor Donald Whalen.

Invasion: 1944

Chief planner
of Normandy assault

British General Fred Morgan

Invasion Idea Born Two Years Before Fact

General, how did it all begin? When did you first get your orders that you were going to be supreme commander in northwest Europe?

My orders that I was going to be the supreme commander of this operation came to me some time in early December, 1943. Mr. (President) Roosevelt was on his way home from Teheran (where he had conferred with Prime Minister Churchill and Premier Stalin) and he stopped in North Africa and notified me. We had received a garbled telegram before that, but his visit was when I got the actual order. There had been quite a bit of gossip, you may remember, in the newspapers about whether I was going to do it or whether

General (George C.) Marshall would. I think the decision was made by Mr. Roosevelt that General Marshall simply couldn't be spared from Washington. Since the major portion of the forces here in northwest Europe was going to be American, as the plan developed, they wanted an American commander. I was the logical choice because of my experience in the Mediterranean.

The cross-channel invasion plan itself was born more than two years before the operation. The outline of the plan was developed in Washington (in February and March, 1942) and approved by the President. He then sent General Marshall and Mr. (Harry) Hopkins to England to talk it over with the British. They approved of it too as the eventual knockout blow for Germany.

Then the invasion was planned shortly after we got into the war in December, 1941!

That's right, and this plan involved thousands of ships and airplanes, guns and ammunition. Some pieces of equipment we later used weren't even dreamed of then.

We were then, in 1942, in a world of deficits. The British had just about lost Tobruk in North Africa. We were losing the Philippines and the islands in the Pacific. The Indonesian Islands were going. It was in that atmosphere that this plan was first conceived and approved as a major operation of the war.

I worked on this plan, took it to the chief of staff, General Marshall, and he liked it. Of course, I knew what his feeling was—that we must do something over here in Europe. And he took it to the president, then to the prime minister, and it was approved. Did you have the slightest idea that you might be the commander of the invasion forces?

On the contrary, I had been

Economy, Welfare Both Rise

DUNCAN—The city's welfare bill was $4,405 in May compared to $4,146 in the same month last year, city council was told Monday, despite the better economic picture in the Cowichan Valley.

However, Ald. B. W. W. Cocks announced a special rehabilitation committee may be formed here within three months to solve the problems of employable jobless people.

Boys Compete In Break-ins?

VANCOUVER (CP)—Police and social workers said yesterday some Vancouver juveniles apparently are competing to see who can break into the greatest number of homes before being caught.

Last week five boys between 15 and 17 were arrested as members of two gangs responsible for 70 house-breakings.

Pupils Show Fine Taste

NANAIMO—Succulent sausage rolls, scrumptious salads and a super-palatable suckling pig were only a few of the culinary treats on display in the vocational training school cafeteria Tuesday.

The display was the culmination of almost a year's training of eight young men by instructors John Bateman and Mel Thomas.

Long Task
The boys and their teachers gave up their weekend and worked all Monday night to prepare the exotic dishes for students, representatives of the B.C. hotel and restaurant associations and Gottielli Dambsch, master chef at the Bayshore Inn in Vancouver and president of the B.C. Chefs Cuisine Association.

Every part of the work was done by the students — from the initial planning to the last dab of whipped cream on the strawberry shortcake.

Annual Event

This was the first year the course was offered at the school and the year-end culinary display will be an annual event.

The kitchens and cafeteria are situated in a $360,000 building separated from the main classrooms by an overhead walk. The students prepare about 7,000 meals a week for the students and staff, and attend classes in buying meat, cutting, baking, nutrition and the preparation of food.

High Praise

Principal J. R. Hindle said the smorgasbord was primarily a trade display, and gave high praise to "the high standard of the daily fare turned out by these boys."

The food was displayed in a wood-paneled setting 15 feet wide and eight feet high, complete with rocks, moss flowers and a miniature waterfall.

Students Bob Hay and Ted Windsor of Kamloops, Bruce Butler and Barry Webb of Parksville, Ken Mason of Victoria, Tom Nurmi of Ladysmith, Dave Longfield of Surrey and Bill Smith of Salmon Arm will finish the course late in July.

Building Way Up

DUNCAN—Building permits issued in the city during May totalled $245,250 in value, city officials say, compared to $118,700 in the same month last year. Five-month totals were $285,900 this year and $174,541 a year ago.

Lady Rose May Vanish

By MARGARET TREBETT

PORT ALBERNI — The newly-opened road to Bamfield from Alberni may hurt Bamfield more than help it, the Chamber of Commerce learned yesterday.

Chamber president Mrs. Edna Souther announced Alberni Marine Transportation is losing its subsidy for the Mv Lady Rose on the run to Bamfield, because of the road.

This, she said, may cause the loss to the district of the ship, which she called this district's major tourist attraction.

And chamber member Harry Graf said he travelled the road to Bamfield last Saturday—and its condition has deteriorated.

Mrs. Souther said she understood the provincial highways department paid a grant to Alberni Marine Transportation in lieu of the road and the subsidy was being withdrawn with the opening of the limited-access overland route.

"I am quite sure no one will put a trucking service over that road," she said.

Mr. Graf said the road's condition "was not anywhere near as good as it was on the day of the official opening.

"I wouldn't want to travel it for $100 a trip," he said.

The road, opened May 31 with much ceremony, used MacMillan, Bloedel and Powell River logging routes over much of its distance. The ribbon was cut at the Fuchena River bridge, built recently by the highways department, which is about two miles from Bamfield.

Mrs. Souther said she had hoped John Monrulat of Alberni Marine Transportation would have been at the meeting to explain the subsidy conditions.

The chamber tabled the matter until a company official can attend a meeting to give a full explanation.

First two jets from RCAF 409 Nighthawk squadron of Comox flew yesterday to Falm Field near Everett, Wash., where 18 planes and 200 men will spend summer while Comox runways are rebuilt. ## 800 Mothers Score Hospital Crowding

PORT ALBERNI—The West Coast General Hospital has been criticized by 800 mothers for balancing its budget, board member Ald. Howard McLean charged before city council Monday night.

The mothers signed a petition which claims "deplorable, overcrowded conditions" and Ald. McLean told council the hospital board is trying to do something about it.

In other major decisions, council:

● Decided to talk to the Tahsis Co. about air pollution from its sawmill.

● Appointed, after a meeting with Alberni council, S. Leslie Hughes as Alberni Valley civil defence co-ordinator.

The mothers' petition urged completion of the hospital's fourth floor as a children's ward and an increase in nursing staff for children.

TOO COMPLACENT

Ald. McLean said "Perhaps we have been too complacent" by simply setting up a committee after the petition was received. On hearing of the committee, the petitioners decided to take the matter to Health Minister Martin.

The alderman said the board had since asked for a meeting with Mr. Martin to discuss its proposed solution, part of which has already been turned down.

It includes completion of the fourth floor, establishment of a hospital district and operation of a long-term nursing care institution. The latter has already been rejected by the health department.

DUTY TO HOLD LINE

Ald. McLean, answering criticism of a balanced budget, said: "We felt it was our duty to try to hold the line. Funds for operating hospitals come from the (sales) tax and we would not like to see it raised to eight or 10 per cent."

He also told the mothers that

DUNCAN — Action against hard-drinking and hard-driving juveniles was demanded by Ald James Saunders as city council met Monday night.

Council decided to ask Magistrate D. K. McAdam if it is within his power to step up fines

Duncan Juvenile Curbs Demanded

'They Just Laugh at Fines'

Council decided to ask Magistrate D. K. McAdam if it is within his power to step up fines for juveniles involved in liquor offences.

Ald. Saunders said juveniles "just laugh at fines" now and council agreed stiffer fines might curb the abuse of liquor by adolescents.

Ald. Saunders said the fine for supplying liquor was $300 during the depression and is the same now, when it should be four times as much.

Later, when council was discussing occasional downtown traffic congestion, Ald. Saunders said conditions would improve considerably if the continuous, purposeless driving of young people through the downtown area could be eliminated.

METERS FOR TAXIS

Council decided to study the request of taxi operator Bert Kyle for a bylaw ordering meters for taxis.

Mr. Kyle said another taxi firm and the Public Utilities Commission favor the move.

He said meters would give operators a break by eliminating arguments about fares.

The rate proposed was 55 cents for half a mile plus 10 cents for every quarter-mile compared to the present 75 cents for 1 1/2 miles.

OTHER BUSINESS

Mr. Kyle also suggested a stricter screening of cabdrivers and confining taxis to their places of business.

Council also:

● Learned the post office is considering a mail delivery service for Duncan instead of the present mailboxes.

● Heard Ald. Hamish Muttar say the bid of transport firms to increase Vancouver-to-Island freight rates should be challenged, but took no definite stand.

● Asked its parks committee to study the request of North Cowichan for a joint conference on parks.

● Decided to sign an agreement with B.C. Hydro for more efficient street lighting.

● Approved the lowest bid, $13,145, from Fulcher and Helgeson Ltd. of Victoria, for a Cairnmore Street sewer project. Highest of the six bids was $19,200.

● Learned from Mayor Jack Dobson a $50,000 proposal for dykes to protect low-lying areas from annual Cowichan River floods is too expensive and a smaller project probably will be carried out.

● Was advised the small black particles which appear in the water system during hot spells will return this summer but likely will be remedied by next summer.

Nanaimo Rape Trial

'Thought I'd Die' Woman Testifies

NANAIMO—"I thought I was going to die out there," a 25-year-old Nanaimo woman testified yesterday in the assize court trial of three Nanaimo men accused of raping her Feb. 10.

More News Of Island On Page 11

The mother of three, who was five months' pregnant at the time, said she and her husband had been drinking in two beer parlors near Wellington before getting a ride with the accused—Walter Francis Norton, Roy Curtis McEldan and Leo McEldan.

HUSBAND JUMPED

She said her husband tried to leave the car several times but McEldan hit him in the face. Finally, he jumped out near the north end of the Lantzville cut-off and made a desperate attempt to drag her with him.

Be he succeeded only in getting her purse.

The woman testified the three men took the car up a back road and one in the back seat "had my head squashed way into a corner."

DON'T TOUCH ME

"I said, 'Don't touch me, I'm pregnant,'" she testified.

She said the man in the back seat replied, "I don't care if you are, you better come across or I'll throw you out of the car."

"He hit me on the mouth," the woman said. "I started to cry more."

Finally, the car was parked on a back road north of Nanaimo.

TOOK CLOTHES OFF

"They were saying, 'Let's take her clothes off.' They started taking my clothes off, all three of them. I couldn't do anything with my head pinned to the back seat of the car."

The woman testified the three men removed all of her clothing except one shoe. The man in the back seat moved to the front and the other two took his place.

"I was crying and kept on saying, 'You're hurting me!'"

ALL AT ONCE

"They were all after me at once. I couldn't do anything. I couldn't hardly breathe."

When the car started again, she said, she put on her coat.

The woman testified one man said, "Let's take her to Parkville and get rid of her."

VERY SCARED

"I was very scared," she said.

The men then stopped the car and told her to get out.

"I felt like I was going to faint," she told the court. "I started walking away from the car."

One of the men approached her again and "I started crying really loud. I thought I was going to die out there."

THROWN TO ROADSIDE

Then she saw a car coming, she said, and "I tried to get up but he threw me onto the side of the road."

Three RCMP officers arrived at that moment.

"I was very glad to see the police car," the woman testified.

Strike Clears Alberni Harbor

PORT ALBERNI—Something good has come out of the office workers' strike — you can see what's in the harbor water.

Mayor Les Hammer told city council Monday he has asked the fisheries department's B.C. biologist to check the water while the mills are closed.

It's much clearer than the usual murky state, he said. In fact, "we can see our sewer outfall and the fish swimming around."

Office Talks Fail

End Likely Today In IWA Dispute

One of the two biggest B.C. labor disputes so far in 1964 is expected to come to an official end at 12:30 noon today—but no end is in sight for the other.

Provincial IWA leaders announced in Vancouver last night the result of the vote among 26,000 coast members on the formula to end their contract dispute will be announced at 12:30 noon.

1,000 MARGIN

The formula for a 23-cent pay hike in a two-year contract, with 15 cents extra for tradesmen, is expected to pass by around 1,000 votes of the 20,000 cast.

Approval by the companies is expected to follow later in the day.

No new efforts were reported yesterday to settle the 23-day strike of 60 office workers which has idled 2,800 men at MacMillan, Bloedel and Powell River plants in the Alberni Valley.

BLAME TRADED

Three days of direct talks in Vancouver broke down Monday night with each side blaming the other.

Spokesmen for the striking office union said yesterday the company would not consider any form of union security, the key issue, while Mac-Powell officials said the firm is willing to agree to "a union security provision."

Work-for-Welfare

Mayor Moore To Try Again

COURTENAY — Mayor William Moore said yesterday he may try again for a work-for-welfare rule despite the fact his scheme was thwarted last year by federal threats to cut off welfare contributions.

He spoke after Premier Bennett supported the Saskatchewan government proposal for a federal-provincial program to put employable welfare recipients to work on public projects.

"It's up to the premiers of all the provinces to put pressure on the federal government," he said.

Mayor Moore wanted able-bodied welfare recipients in Courtenay to work on public projects and, while the scheme was never started, the idea succeeded.

NONE ON LIST

He said there were no able-bodied men on social assistance in Courtenay at last count.

"We got rid of some dead-beats," he said. "They moved out and never came back."

21-Gun Salute

Two gun detachments from the 5th (B.C.) Independent Medium Battery, RCA, under the command of Lieut. A. A. Gillan, will fire a 21-gun salute at noon today at Macaulay Point, marking the occasion of the birthday of Prince Philip.

High Court Orders Judges to Appear

NANAIMO — R. E. (Doc) Nicoll has advanced another step in his fight against the local court of assessment revision.

The B.C. Supreme Court has ordered two court of revision judges and a representative of the attorney-general's department to appear before it in Vancouver June 22.

The B.C. court ruled April 16 the court of revision could not take such action and ordered a new hearing. Last week, the court of revision refused the new hearing, saying a provincial act states it must complete work by March 1.

Court of revision judges Russell Inkster and William Cochran must appear June 22.

Third member John Barby is on the second month of a six-month tour of Europe.

Mr. Nicoll said he would appeal the court's decision.

Gas, Hoses Kill Gory Race Riot

TUSCALOOSA, Ala. (AP)—Hundreds of Negroes shouting "we want freedom" defied a ban on street demonstrations Tuesday and engaged in a bloody clash with police.

The outbreak of violence, involving mostly teen-agers, was touched off by the refusal of city officials to let them carry on a planned protest march against segregation.

Angry Negroes inside a church threw bottles, rocks and even chairs at the blue-helmeted officers surrounding the building. Police restored order 45 minutes later with fire hoses and tear gas.

Police arrested 96 persons, including 15 juveniles who were turned over to juvenile court. The others were charged with a variety of offences, including

Whites Stomp Whites

ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla. (AP)—White men and youths kicked and beat civil rights demonstrators Tuesday night in an outbreak of violence near this old city's slave market after more than 200 persons marched downtown.

Special target of the hit-and-run attack was the small number of white demonstrators. Several white men were knocked to the pavement, then methodically kicked and stomped.

A big white man assaulted one white demonstrator as the marchers filed along the sidewalk two abreast. The demonstrator threw his hands around his head and groaned to the sound of repeated kicks.

Both mother and daughter were reported "doing fine." Valentina is the wife of Soviet cosmonaut Andrian Nikolayev.

Montana Toll Now 30 2,000 FLEE FLOOD

*****

GREAT FALLS, Mont. (AP)—At least 2,000 persons were evacuated from Great Falls area homes Tuesday night as the crest of a disastrous flood spilled over eight square miles.

The Sun River crested at this city of 70,000 persons.

Upstream, the waters of the state's most damaging flood left at least 30 persons reported dead and hundreds homeless. Governor Tim Babcock estimated damage at $10,000,000.

President Johnson declared seven flooded northwestern Montana counties a disaster area.

Dam-breaking flood waters from four days of rain and from melting snow off the Rocky Mountains swelled streams on both sides of the Continental Divide.

Great Falls was prepared with sandbags and emergency shelter facilities for the crest.

Tom Sullivan, manager of a Red Cross shelter set up in the Great Falls West Side Junior High School, said he had processed about 1,300 persons evacuated from homes west of Great Falls and from an exclusive residential area surrounding a country club and a golf course.

At midnight, the Sun River was nearly 23 feet deep, 11 feet over its flood stage.

A spokesman for the air force and national guard estimated that 2,000 to 3,000 persons were evacuated from their homes in Great Falls and in the flooded areas to the west and north.

Earlier, upstream from Great Falls the crest was visible from the air as it rolled along

Peaceful Death at Home Claims Lord Beaverbrook

LONDON (CP)—Canadian-born Lord Beaverbrook, the millionaire publisher whose newspapers became part of the British way of life, died Tuesday at his home near Leatherhead in Surrey. He was 85.

One of the most famous Canadians to settle in Britain, the Presbyterian minister's son from the Ontario manse, who always remembered his later boyhood in the Maritimes, died peacefully, surrounded by his family.

His son Max Aitken, who will carry on as head of the Beaverbrook newspaper empire, said the Beaver, as he was universally known, had been seriously ill for the last week.

Death came only two weeks after a memorable birthday anniversary dinner at London's Dorchester Hotel given for him by a fellow Canadian-born publisher, Lord Thomson.

Once penniless, Beaverbrook built up a fortune in the cement business in Canada and left at the age of 28 to start a new career in Britain. After the First World War he bought The

His Birthplace Forgot Beaver

MAPLE, Ont. (UPI)—This tiny Ontario township, birthplace of a minister's son who became one of the great men of his time, hardly seems to remember him at all.

There is no monument to William Maxwell "Max" Aitken, Lord Beaverbrook, born here May 25, 1879. The St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church in which his father preached still stands, but the manse in which Beaverbrook was born has been torn down and replaced.

There is a memorial to Rev. William Aitken, but none for his son.

The Aitkens moved to northern New Brunswick when Max was a year old, and there is no one alive who remembers the family.

But Newcastle Remembered, Grieved

NEWCASTLE, N.B. (UPI)—This town of 5,000 people was plunged into sorrow by the news of the death of Lord Beaverbrook a man it had known first as Max Aitken, son of the Presbyterian minister.

Lord Beaverbrook did much for the town. He converted the manse where he grew up into a library, donating 1,500 books to its shelves. He gave the town a rink, a theatre, a town hall. He gave chimneys and an organ to the church.

When the district gave him the town square, he refurbished it — then created a fund to ensure that the town need never spend a penny for maintenance of any of his gifts.

"We have lost a good friend," said Mayor Donald Whalen.

Fumes Kill Two

MONTREAL (CP)—Two persons died Tuesday after inhaling ammonia fumes at a plant in suburban Lachine and a third man was killed in a collision between his car and a police ambulance rushing to the scene.

Leo Montreuil, 25, and Moise Clayton, 29, both of Montreal, were overcome by the fumes and died. Arthur Breton, 35, was killed in the collision.

A gas leak was discovered after 15 employees of the Smith and Nephew toiletries firm suddenly became ill. Several persons were treated at the plant and nine others were taken to hospital.

Misleading —Liberal

VANCOUVER (CP)—Maclean's King was a staunch Conservative — true or false?

According to a B.C. school textbook it is true.

History student John W. Groom said the textbook — "This Golden Age of Conflict" — claims that "in 1947 Maclean's King celebrated his 26th year as Conservative prime minister, but the following year was defeated by the Liberal Louis St. Laurent."

J. F. K. English, deputy education minister, said the error had been corrected.

Fraser Nearing Danger Mark

The runoff-swollen Fraser River rose to within two feet of the flood-danger level in the Fraser Valley yesterday, and officials ordered 24-hour patrols on 240 miles of dikes.

Some minor flooding of farmland was reported, but biggest concern was the forecast for warm, sunny weather through most of B.C.

A spell of hot, dry weather would melt the last of the snow quickly and probably bring on flooding conditions, although officials said they were not cer-

Officials, checking emergency civil defence supplies in the valley, said the next few days would determine whether serious flooding would occur.

Meanwhile, three families left their homes as water seeped over a farm near Agassiz, and nine more prepared to leave. In Matsqui, water rolled over un-diked farmland and covered roads with 18 inches of water. At Hope, the Fraser swept over a riverbank street.

Second Senate Reading Given B.C. Bank Bill

OTTAWA (CP)—A private bill to establish the Bank of British Columbia received second reading—approval in principle—in the Senate Tuesday after its sponsor rejected arguments that the proposed institution would be unconstitutional.

Senators—Liberals and Conservatives—who called on division said earlier they would approve second reading only for the purpose of getting a chance to question the sponsor of the bank before a Senate committee.

Mac-Powell Strike Legal Says MacEachen's Aide

OTTAWA (CP)—James Byrne, parliamentary secretary to Labor Minister MacEachen, said Tuesday night the office workers' strike against the MacMillan, Bloedel and Powell Elver Company in British Columbia is a "legitimate legal strike" and he said the federal labor department should not interfere. Conversation with Eisenhower as he looks back to
Invasion: 1944

Invasion Idea Born Two Years Before Fact

General, how did it all begin? When did you first get your orders that you were going to be supreme commander in northwest Europe?

My orders that I was going to be the supreme commander of this operation came to me some time in early December, 1943. Mr. (President) Roosevelt was on his way home from Teheran (where he had conferred with Prime Minister Churchill and Premier Stalin) and he stopped in North Africa and notified me. We had received a garbled telegram before that, but his visit was when I got the actual order. There had been quite a bit of gossip, you may remember, in the newspapers about whether I was going to do it or whether

General (George C.) Marshall would. I think the decision was made by Mr. Roosevelt that General Marshall simply couldn't be spared from Washington. Since the major portion of the forces here in northwest Europe was going to be American, as the plan developed, they wanted an American commander. I was the logical choice because of my experience in the Mediterranean.

The cross-channel invasion plan itself was born more than two years before the operation. The outline of the plan was developed in Washington (in February and March, 1942) and approved by the president. He then sent General Marshall and Mr. (Harry) Hopkins to England to talk it over with the British. They approved of it too as the eventual knockout blow for Germany.

Then the invasion was planned shortly after we got into the war in December, 1941?

That's right, and this plan involved thousands of ships and airplanes, guns and ammunition. Some pieces of equipment we later used weren't even dreamed of then.

We were then, in 1942, in a world of deficits. The British had just about lost Tobruk in North Africa. We were losing the Philippines and the islands in the Pacific. The Indonesian Islands were going. It was in that atmosphere that this plan was first conceived and approved as a major operation of the war.

I worked on this plan, took it to the chief of staff, General Marshall, and he liked it. Of course, I knew what his feeling was—that we must do something over here in Europe. And he took it to the president, then to the prime minister, and it was approved.

Did you have the slightest idea that you might be the commander of the invasion forces?

On the contrary, I had been
